Woodward Entry Favorite Of

By Lawton Carver
CHURCHILL DOWNS, LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 6—The sun may shine bright on that old Kentucky home, or the rain may fall, but come fair weather or foul Johnstown is regarded as a virtual certainty to go to the post as the stand-out favorite in the Kentucky Derby late today. If the track is dry, he may be odds on. If it comes up mud, most of his backers will stick in there just the same—sink or swim.

This was the 65th running of America's premier turf classic out to a crazy pattern that all but eliminates from consideration the rest of the aristocratic three-year-old field, which will total nine or 10 depending on condition of the racing strip. If it's dry, Challenge, a superior mudder running with Johnstown as a Belair Stud entry, will be scratched, presumably. If possible showers pelt the premises, Challenge will remain among the starters, holding the field at 10. They will catapult from the barrier at approximately 5:30 p. m. (Circleville time), headed around the venerable and revered Downs, capital of the julep belt and proud of it, the distance to (Continued on Page Eight)

COURT PERMITS ARMLESS YOUTH DRIVER'S RIGHTS

XENIA, May 6—Despite the fact that he has been armless since birth, 21-year-old Paul E. Layton of nearby Osborn is entitled to an automobile driver's license in Ohio, it was revealed today in a ruling handed down by the second district court of appeals.

The decision upheld a similar one by former Common Pleas Judge George H. Smith and rejected an appeal by the state bureau of motor vehicles, which had refused Layton a permit because of physical defects.

With Judge Smith as a passenger, the youth had convinced the lower court that he could handle an auto as well as the ordinary driver. He has been operating a car for more than six years and drives a tractor on his father's farm.

PRESIDENT ASKS END OF STRIKE JUDGE ORDERS TRIO TO PRISON

F. D. R. Sends Urgent Note
To Negotiators Seeking Agreement

WASHINGTON, May 6—President Roosevelt today directly intervened in the deadlocked soft coal negotiations in New York, appealing to John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers and the soft coal operators to continue their work "until a speedy settlement is made."

The President asserted that, because of the nationwide shutdown of coal mines, due to the deadlocked negotiations, the "public interest is paramount and above that of any group"—above that of either the union or the operators.

The executive also told both sides in the dispute that they must "give and take."

The President, making his appeal in a telegram addressed to the joint conference of miners and operators in New York, twice stressed the need for quick action.

Once, in the wire, he stated "time is now important and agreement must be reached promptly."

Again the chief executive said "a speedy settlement" was imperative.

Mr. Roosevelt said he acted "as President of the United States" and in the interest of the public.

His action, it was believed, was in response to many appeals sent to the White House for intervention, including requests from Mayor LaGuardia of New York, representatives in congress, and heads of many industries.

LOGANSPOUT, PA., DISTILLERY GOES UP IN FLAMES

LOGANSPOUT, Pa., May 6—Fed by thousands of barrels of bonded whiskey, fire of undetermined origin early today destroyed the Logansport distillery of the Pennsylvania Distilling company with an estimated loss that may exceed $1,000,000.

Twenty fire companies from a dozen Allegheny valley communities were given their most spectacular assignment in years as the $2,000,000 federal bonded warehouse was razed by flame and explosions that followed the advancing fire.

Joseph R. Steinman, vice president of the company, estimated the warehouse loss at between $500,000 and $1,000,000, pending a check on the ages of whiskey consumed in the fire.

Barrel after barrel of bonded whiskey exploded under the terrific heat. The fluid ran as a flaming river in a railroad siding, endangering adjoining buildings until firemen and emergency workers cut ditches diverting the stream into the Allegheny river.

The Buffalo flyer of the Pennsylvania railroad was held up for a time by the blazing building and finally was rerouted.

RUSSIAN ENVOY HINTS REFUSAL OF MAJOR PACT

LONDON, May 6—Soviet Ambassador Ivan Maisky conferred today with Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax in an attempt to end the diplomatic impasse which is keeping Russia out of the Anglo-French bloc, but Maisky left with the impression that Britain has rejected Russia's proposals for a military alliance.

Britain, in the meantime, is holding up her reply to Moscow's offer, which included demands for guarantees in the Far East.

Maisky and Lord Halifax discussed the broad outline of the British reply, but the answer was not explained in detail even to the Soviet ambassador. The Briton said a full reply would be communicated to Moscow soon.

LONDON, May 6—A report that a Anglo-Turkish agreement has been concluded binding the two nations to collaboration to insure the security of the Mediterranean was denied officially today.

Whitehall authorities said the report was "premature" and that conversations are still proceeding. The report, circulated in an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Istanbul, said terms of the pact would be announced Monday before the house of commons in London and the Turkish parliament in Ankara.

WIFE CLAIMS HUSBAND SHOPS AND COOKS ONLY DISHES HE LIKES BEST

COLUMBUS, May 6—Charging that her husband insisted on doing the shopping and cooking and served only foods he liked, Mrs. Daisy Ziesler, Columbus, today sought a divorce from Pearl C. Ziesler.

In a petition filed in domestic relations court, Mrs. Ziesler alleged her mate expected her and their 18-year-old daughter "to eat things he likes, such as kidneys, turkeys, pig ears, pig knuckles and other foods." She complained that he even turned off the gas and padlocked the meter to keep her from cooking while he was away.

Mayor, Council Head Preside
As Residents Gather In

The Darbyville community plans a campaign against petitions to transfer sections of Muhlenberg school district to the Jackson school district, threatening the village grade school.

Approximately 40 persons, largely residents of the village, attended a public meeting Friday night in the township house, called for a discussion of the school problems. John Renick, president of village council, was chairman of the meeting.

A committee consisting of John Hill, chairman, Cecil Caudie and Floyd Brigner, was appointed by Mr. Renick to start a remonstrance against the two petitions now on file with the county board of education asking transfer of territory. Another meeting will be held by the village folk next Thursday night to discuss progress in the campaign.

Those attending the Friday night meeting voted unanimously to retain the grade school in the village. Cecil Reid, president of the school board, was the only member of the board attending the meeting.

High School Lost

Although the group voted to retain the grade school the parents seemed resigned to the fact there was little hope of keeping the high school in the village as a result of the recent action of the State High School board in annulling the high school charter, effective June 30, due to small enrollment. The Muhlenberg school has 120 pupils. (Continued on Page Eight)

President Of Graduating Class Put In 'Who's Who'

A glance at the record of Frank Emerson Barnhill, Jr., honored this week in "Who's Who Among High School Seniors," will disclose the reasons for his election as one of the seven outstanding members of the class of 1939.

Barnhill has shown his popularity and leadership in holding the presidency of his class during its sophomore, junior and senior years.

This point is further proved by his two elections to head school clubs. He is now president of the Hi-Y, and during his sophomore year he was president of the Boys' Glee club. Last year he was secretary of the Stogee club.

Besides holding membership in Boys' Glee club, Stogees, Hi-Y, Mixed Glee club, Epsilon Mu Sigma, and Debate club, Barnhill has handled roles in both junior and senior class plays, "New Fires" and "The Late Christopher Bean."

Named to the "Circle" business staff, he has contributed a large share of the effort necessary for its production.

Recently elected by fellow classmates as one of their nine representatives, he spoke before the Rotary club.

Though active in so many organizations, Barnhill, through his scholastic record, has won himself a place on Circleville's 1939 District-State Scholarship team.

A graduate in the classical course, he is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Barnhill of North Court street.

CHICAGO, May 6—Mrs. James Smiley held a divorce today on cruelty grounds, to wit:

"My husband played the phonograph to save the cost of using the radio."

"He'd let me have only one light in the house—in the kitchen. He'd start shaving in the bathroom in the dark and put the finishing touches on over the sink, using the window as a mirror."

"He had me cut my hair short so I wouldn't go to a beauty parlor."

"We always had boiled eggs so I could use the water for the tea."

"When we had guests he gave them coats instead of building a big enough fire to keep the house warm."

Smiley's nationality? Scotch.

THE "resignation" of Maxim Litvinov, arch-champion of the League of Nations and bitter enemy of Fascism, as Soviet foreign minister, creates fear in England and France that Russia would not participate in a "Stop Hitler" movement. Appointment of Premier Viacheslav Molotov as Litvinov's successor forecasts a change in Soviet foreign policy, it is believed. An isolation policy adopted by Russia would remove one of Germany's greatest worries—the menace of the giant Russian army, now under the leadership of Klementi Voroshilov, Soviet defense commissar. Josef Stalin, head of the Russian government, is now seen as taking complete control over all foreign office negotiations. Meanwhile, Europe wondered at the status of Georgi Dimitrov, now secretary general of the Comintern, and regarded by the Nazi leadership as Germany's most unrelenting foe.

THOUSANDS SEE BRITISH RULERS BEGIN SEA TRIP

LONDON, May 6—Thousands of persons jammed flag-bedecked Waterloo station today to see King George and Queen Elizabeth board the royal train on the first stage of their precedent-shattering 16,000-mile state tour of Canada and the United States.

Cabinet ministers, members of the royal family, and uniformed high government officials were among the cheering throng that witnessed the beginning of the historic trip—the first ever taken by a British monarch to American soil.

The uniformed king, and the smiling queen, dressed in a Spring ensemble, chatted briefly with officials on the red-carpeted platform of the station before entering their private train.

The routine duties of the throne have been left in the hands of a specially-appointed "council of state"—composed of the Duke of Gloucester, the Duke of Kent, the Princess Royal, and Princess Arthur of Connaught.

In the event of any serious crisis during his absence, the king will "reign by radio." Advance arrangements have been made should any occasion arise. All during the journey the king will receive daily advices from London.

LABORERS IN SAAR, RUHR DISTRICTS FIGHT NAZIS

LONDON, May 6—Many German workers in the Saar and Ruhr districts have been arrested for protesting against conditions there, the London Daily Express reported from Essen, Germany, today.

The paper said 18 workers were arrested and sent to the Dachau concentration camp following a fight between the workers and a delegation of Nazi officials at Burbach.

FREIGHT CRASH KILLS TWO MEN, INJURES OTHERS

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C., May 6—Two persons were killed and two others were critically injured in Fayetteville early today when a northbound Atlantic coast freight train collided with a gasoline trailer loaded with 4,000 gallons of gas.

The dead:
A. F. Buchanan, 51, of Rocky Mount, N. C., engineer on the freight train.

George W. Barbee, 35, of Fayetteville, driver of the gas trailer. The injured, who were not expected to live, were:

H. D. Fowler, 32, of Rocky Mount, N. C., brakeman.
Earlie Powell, 43, Negro fireman.

PRISON WARDEN CUTS ONLOOKERS AT EXECUTIONS

COLUMBUS, May 6—Fewer spectators will be permitted at the next Ohio penitentiary electrocution, W. F. Amrine, acting warden, decided today. His decision resulted from the fact that more than 125 persons crowded the death house for each of the two last executions.

Unless he is granted a stay by Governor Bricker, the next person who may die in the electric chair is Nick Babich, 54, Warren, convicted of slaying his wife and a neighbor. His death is set for Tuesday night.

RECKLESS YOUTH FINED

W. D. Lee, 21, of McArthur, forfeited a $20 bond in Mayor W. B. Cady's court Saturday at 9 a. m. when he failed to report on a charge of reckless driving on N. Court street. He was arrested at 2:15 a. m. Saturday. The police report says he was driving 60 miles an hour.

WARSAW WAITS FOR FUEHRER'S MOVE ON DANZIG

NATION SUPPORTS BECK

Many Rumors, Reports Work
Way Through European Countries

WARSAW, May 6—With its armed forces heavily mobilized and determined to protect its rights against any sudden attempted coup, Poland looked to Nazi Germany today to make the next move in the Polish-German dispute over the free city of Danzig and the Polish Corridor.

The government stood squarely on Foreign Minister Josef Beck's speech before Parliament, in which he rejected Germany's "one-sided" demand for restoration of Danzig to the Reich and asked whether the German claim to a sovereign right of way across the Corridor was not a move to cut off Poland from the Baltic.

Many circles in Warsaw took the view that the decision as to whether Europe's tension will continue now rests on the shoulders of Chancellor Adolf Hitler. German hints of a campaign aimed at a plebiscite in Danzig were being watched closely.

Door Remains Open

Authorities pointed out, however, that Beck did not close the door to further negotiations with the Reich. They said that by offering to negotiate a settlement of the controversy on a basis of equality, Beck carefully left the diplomatic door ajar.

Beck's speech was summed up as putting before Hitler Poland's unalterable refusal to yield territory. (Continued on Page Eight)

Germany Angered

BERLIN—Antagonism between Germany and Poland reached a new height today following the parliamentary address of Polish Foreign Minister Josef Beck rejecting Chancellor Adolf Hitler's demand for incorporation of Danzig in the Reich. Through its foreign office organ, Diplomatic Correspondence, Germany warned the Polish government that it can no longer expect "understanding and tolerance" from Berlin.

Axis Breaking Up?

WASHINGTON—Secret reports to Washington indicate the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo axis is beginning to crack up. The belief is growing in responsible quarters that the partnership of Germany, Italy and Japan would not stand the strain of any major war precipitated by Germany's ambition to dominate Europe.

Pope Intervenes

LONDON—Pope Pius XII has intervened in the German-Polish crisis over the free city of Danzig. London newspapers reported today. The dispatches stated that Msgr. Cesare Orsenigo, papal nuncio to Germany, flew from Berlin to Berchtesgaden to confer with Chancellor Hitler for half an hour and that the papal nuncio to France, Msgr. Valerio Valeri, saw French Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet.

Duce for Showdown

MILAN, Italy—Premier Mussolini launched what appeared to be a determined effort today to prevent an immediate showdown between Germany and Poland. Through his son-in-law, Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister, according to reliable Italian political circles, Il Duce will seek to dissuade the Nazi government from precipitating an immediate explosion that might involve Europe in a major conflict. Ciano arrived this morning to open two days of conferences in Milan with German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop. The conversations were initiated by the Reich in order to obtain a clear idea of the Italian view of the situation before it becomes aggravated.

Soviet troops in Red Square, Moscow

THE "resignation" of Maxim Litvinov, arch-champion of the League of Nations and bitter enemy of Fascism, as Soviet foreign minister, creates fear in England and France that Russia would not participate in a "Stop Hitler" movement. Appointment of Premier Viacheslav Molotov as Litvinov's successor forecasts a change in Soviet foreign policy, it is believed. An isolation policy adopted by Russia would remove one of Germany's greatest worries—the menace of the giant Russian army, now under the leadership of Klementi Voroshilov, Soviet defense commissar. Josef Stalin, head of the Russian government, is now seen as taking complete control over all foreign office negotiations. Meanwhile, Europe wondered at the status of Georgi Dimitrov, now secretary general of the Comintern, and regarded by the Nazi leadership as Germany's most unrelenting foe.

THOUSANDS SEE FREIGHT CRASH BRITISH RULERS KILLS TWO MEN, BEGIN SEA TRIP INJURES OTHERS

LONDON, May 6—Thousands of persons jammed flag-bedecked Waterloo station today to see King George and Queen Elizabeth board the royal train on the first stage of their precedent-shattering 16,000-mile state tour of Canada and the United States.

Cabinet ministers, members of the royal family, and uniformed high government officials were among the cheering throng that witnessed the beginning of the historic trip—the first ever taken by a British monarch to American soil.

The uniformed king, and the smiling queen, dressed in a Spring ensemble, chatted briefly with officials on the red-carpeted platform of the station before entering their private train.

The routine duties of the throne have been left in the hands of a specially-appointed "council of state"—composed of the Duke of Gloucester, the Duke of Kent, the Princess Royal, and Princess Arthur of Connaught.

In the event of any serious crisis during his absence, the king will "reign by radio." Advance arrangements have been made should any occasion arise. All during the journey the king will receive daily advices from London.

LABORERS IN SAAR, RUHR DISTRICTS FIGHT NAZIS

LONDON, May 6—Many German workers in the Saar and Ruhr districts have been arrested for protesting against conditions there, the London Daily Express reported from Essen, Germany, today.

The paper said 18 workers were arrested and sent to the Dachau concentration camp following a fight between the workers and a delegation of Nazi officials at Burbach.

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C., May 6

Two persons were killed and two others were critically injured in Fayetteville early today when a northbound Atlantic coast freight train collided with a gasoline trailer loaded with 4,000 gallons of gas.

The dead:

A. F. Buchanan, 51, of Rocky Mount, N. C., engineer on the freight train.

George W. Barbee, 35, of Fayetteville, driver of the gas trailer. The injured, who were not expected to live, were:

H. D. Fowler, 32, of Rocky Mount, N. C., brakeman.

Earlie Powell, 43, Negro fireman.

PRISON WARDEN CUTS ONLOOKERS AT EXECUTIONS

COLUMBUS, May 6—Fewer spectators will be permitted at the next Ohio penitentiary electrocution, W. F. Amrine, acting warden, decided today. His decision resulted from the fact that more than 125 persons crowded the death house for each of the two last executions.

Unless he is granted a stay by Governor Bricker, the next person who may die in the electric chair is Nick Babich, 54, Warren, convicted of slaying his wife and a neighbor. His death is set for Tuesday night.

RECKLESS YOUTH FINED

W. D. Lee, 21, of McArthur, forfeited a $20 bond in Mayor W. B. Cady's court Saturday at 9 a. m. when he failed to report on a charge of reckless driving on N. Court street. He was arrested at 2:15 a. m. Saturday. The police report says he was driving 60 miles an hour.

Many Rumors, Reports Work
Way Through European Countries

WARSAW, May 6—With its armed forces heavily mobilized and determined to protect its rights against any sudden attempted coup, Poland looked to Nazi Germany today to make the next move in the Polish-German dispute over the free city of Danzig and the Polish Corridor.

The government stood squarely on Foreign Minister Josef Beck's speech before Parliament, in which he rejected Germany's "one-sided" demand for restoration of Danzig to the Reich and asked whether the German claim to a sovereign right of way across the Corridor was not a move to cut off Poland from the Baltic.

Many circles in Warsaw took the view that the decision as to whether Europe's tension will continue now rests on the shoulders of Chancellor Adolf Hitler. German hints of a campaign aimed at a plebiscite in Danzig were being watched closely.

Door Remains Open

Authorities pointed out, however, that Beck did not close the door to further negotiations with the Reich. They said that by offering to negotiate a settlement of the controversy on a basis of equality, Beck carefully left the diplomatic door ajar.

Beck's speech was summed up as putting before Hitler Poland's unalterable refusal to yield territory. (Continued on Page Eight)

Germany Angered

BERLIN—Antagonism between Germany and Poland reached a new height today following the parliamentary address of Polish Foreign Minister Josef Beck rejecting Chancellor Adolf Hitler's demand for incorporation of Danzig in the Reich. Through its foreign office organ, Diplomatic Correspondence, Germany warned the Polish government that it can no longer expect "understanding and tolerance" from Berlin.

Axis Breaking Up?

WASHINGTON—Secret reports to Washington indicate the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo axis is beginning to crack up. The belief is growing in responsible quarters that the partnership of Germany, Italy and Japan would not stand the strain of any major war precipitated by Germany's ambition to dominate Europe.

Pope Intervenes

LONDON—Pope Pius XII has intervened in the German-Polish crisis over the free city of Danzig. London newspapers reported today. The dispatches stated that Msgr. Cesare Orsenigo, papal nuncio to Germany, flew from Berlin to Berchtesgaden to confer with Chancellor Hitler for half an hour and that the papal nuncio to France, Msgr. Valerio Valeri, saw French Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet.

Duce for Showdown

MILAN, Italy—Premier Mussolini launched what appeared to be a determined effort today to prevent an immediate showdown between Germany and Poland. Through his son-in-law, Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister, according to reliable Italian political circles, Il Duce will seek to dissuade the Nazi government from precipitating an immediate explosion that might involve Europe in a major conflict. Ciano arrived this morning to open two days of conferences in Milan with German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop. The conversations were initiated by the Reich in order to obtain a clear idea of the Italian view of the situation before it becomes aggravated.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 6—Reaching its typical hectic climax as the day of the big race dawned, the annual Kentucky Derby jubilee gave all Louisville an air of festive hysteria today.

Crowds jamming the streets and sidewalks appeared to number several times the estimated 75,000 expected to be in the stands at Churchill Downs at post time this afternoon.

Police, in fact, agreed that at least that number were from out-of-town alone.

Hundreds without tickets came annually in the usually vain hope of getting inside the gates by post time by hook or crook. Others are attracted by the spectacle of the derby season and the unnumbered parties to be found.

Detectives on Hand

Scores of local detectives and G-men constantly eye the crowds for criminals of all types and shapes who invariably try to pry some cash from the free-spending holiday throng.

For there is no depression in Louisville today. Money flows as freely as mint juleps. And the bars packed with visitors clamoring for a sample of the famous southern drink at 75 cents per clip.

Hotels are swamped and rooms in the best resorts are going for as high as $20 per night for the weekend. Taxicabs command $1 and up for a trip usually costing no more than a quarter.

More than $500,000 will be bet on the derby alone, this afternoon, according to advance predictions and the mutual handle for the day's racing card is expected to reach three times that figure. Another $3,000,000 will have been spent on hotel accommodations, in restaurants, bars and night clubs by this time tomorrow night.

The crowd started its trek toward Churchill Downs as the latest of the parties broke up at dawn.

The roads were soon jammed with automobiles, colored boys with metal tipped shoes got out early and began their almost tireless jiggling for what coppers were thrown their way. Hawkers of souvenirs lined the walks and "the winner" could be bought on every corner for fifty cents up.

White shoes and straw hats predominated. Today is Louisville's inauguration of the Summer season, and it was a perfect one. Warm and cloudiness despite predictions of rain for later in the afternoon.

At the track the throng was treated to an improved and beautified layout. For the first time "John Citizen" can sit in a fifty cent seat-first come first served-and bet a dollar on his favorite's nose. While across the way is "room 20" the lavish clubhouse suite for millionaire owners and celebrities.

499,343 Pins Blasted During Bowling Year

Nearly 500,000 10 pins were toppled during the bowling season just ended, officials of the Circleville Athletic Club alleys, where the competition was conducted, reported Saturday. The exact number was 499,343, eight teams blasting the maples once each week since early in the Winter season for a total of 30 weeks.

The Albaugh Funeral Co. team, although finishing in second place behind the Coca Colas in the standing, scored the best marks of the season with 73,061 pins against 71,184 for the league champions.

In third place, in the aggregate score was the Hanley Lefty crew with 64,045, although that team finished in fifth place in the standing. The Mader Funeral service hit for a 63,641 total; Yates-Sinclair service had 60,212; Circleville Produce, 58,132; Merchants Five, 56,556, and Circleville Merchants, 54,512.

The Albaugh team knocked off the prize for the high three games in the league with 2,769 and also scored the best single game, 1,055. Bob Campbell, manager of C. A. C. alleys, finished the league

CINCINNATI RETAINS GRIP ON LEAGUE'S SECOND SLOT

BOSTON, Mass., May 6—The Cincinnati Reds today maintained their precarious grip on the second place rung in the National League pennant race following their victory over the circuit-leading Boston Bees here yesterday, 5 to 4, in a 13-inning battle.

The Ohio club is tied for the second position with St. Louis and Brooklyn, each only one-half game behind the Bees. Another game between Cincinnati and Boston was scheduled for today.

JESSICA SLID down the banister and landed in her father's arms. She put a finger to her mouth. "Shh!" she cautioned, "Mommie's asleep. We're going to have our supper in the kitchen."

"How was the party?" he asked in a stage whisper.

"It was a pretty good haul, Annie says," the five-year-old informed him.

The living room was littered with bits of tissue paper and pieces of blue and pink satin ribbons. Rouge-tipped cigarettes filled the ash trays beside empty bon-bon dishes. "Sure it wasn't a hurricane that struck here?" Phil asked his daughter.

"Wait until you see the dining room," she said wisely. "Daddy, Mommie told Annie to leave the table for you to see. It was wonderful. I had three pieces of ice cream."

"The dining room table was covered with a white lace cloth and decorated with a centerpiece of flowers from which a papier mache stork rose."

"It must have been some party," he said.

"It was wonderful, daddy. Mommie got so many presents. You could hear them talking a mile away."

Her father smiled. "Everybody had a good time. Even Mommie."

Phil gave his daughter a startled glance. Her perception often amazed him.

"Did I have a stork shower before I was born, Daddy?"

Phil remembered those days in the apartment on Elane street. He remembered Eleanor's persistent attitude that Jessica's arrival was merely a biological business which called for no undue excitement.

"Sure," he said, knowing that small girls attach much importance to such matters.

"Was I a pretty baby? Were you glad to have me?"

"Beautiful!" he said, believing it to be true. "And your mother said that you were going to grow up and marry a prince of Wales."

"I don't want to, Daddy. I want to marry a newspaperman."

"God forbid!" he said piously.

"Why are you a newspaperman, Daddy?"

"So that I can take care of my little girl," he answered. Immediately he could not meet her wide eyes. What he had said was not strictly true. It was Eleanor's money that paid for the nurse-maid that took her to the school that Eleanor's money made possible.

He took cheer from the thought that Eleanor was not working now, and that he had another raise. He was getting a hundred a week. Even if Eleanor didn't go back to writing, he could take care of his family on that sum. Perhaps he wouldn't be able to join the golf club in the spring, but it wouldn't matter whether or not he did.

No, Eleanor was not working. The baby was expected next month and she had stopped writing nearly six months before. Eleanor was doing a very thorough job, he thought happily. There had been nothing casual about this. She was glad enough to have a glass of milk brought to her occasionally, and if he looked a pillow back of her, she smiled at him gratefully.

After Phil and his daughter finished their supper, Nell's voice called to him from above, "Is that you, Phil?"

"Coming right up," he said. She was sitting up in her bed,

Dahlgren, Gehrig's Successor, Former Star Infielder in Pacific Coast Loop

NEW YORK, May 6.—"They also serve who only stand and wait."

Milton said that. He did NOT have a baseball player in mind. But we do. Ellsworth Tenney (Babe) Dahlgren of the Yanks.

Several days ago in Detroit, Lou Gehrig walked away from home plate after giving the umpire the lineup for the day and out walked Dahlgren to first base. It was a chance he had been waiting for since 1936 when after playing one year at first base the Red Sox bagged Jimmy Fox, also a first baseman of note, from the Philadelphia A's. Later, bought by the Yanks, Dahlgren had to wait for Gehrig's consecutive games streak to end.

Dahlgren at last had his chance. He stepped to the plate and banged the ball like the Gehrig of old. Probably Dahlgren won't be kept on first. For Lou, rightly so, will get all the chances he wants to return to the lineup. But at least Dahlgren had his reward—a chance to play.

Coast League Product

Soft spoken, tall and genial Dahlgren has been the highest paid utility player in the majors. His minor league record back-grounds him as a worthy successor to Gehrig, if there can be such a person.

Born in San Francisco in 1912, Dahlgren first attracted notice by his play with his high school team in Frisco. He could play any position. While still a student, the record states, he was signed by the Mission club of the Pacific Coast league, where he played in 1932, '33 and '34. In 1934, with the Mission club, he batted .302, getting 222 hits and 106 runs and 20 home runs.

Purchased by the Red Sox in 1935, he played first throughout the season, winding up with a .263 average. In 1936, Fox joined the Sox and Dahlgren, excess baggage, was sent to Syracuse of the International loop. With Syracuse that season he batted .320.

Plays Third, Too

The Yankees were scouring the scene for a utility infielder for even then Gehrig was a veteran campaigner. Dahlgren was the man picked and in the early days of the 1937 training season, Dahlgren played first for the Yanks. Gehrig was a hold-out at the time. When Gehrig signed, Dahlgren was sent to Newark, the Yankee farm.

With Newark in 1937 Dahlgren played third, and did so good he came back to the Yanks as utility in 1938. His Newark record was .340 in 125 games. Last year Dahlgren played in only 27 games, most of his innings being spent at third.

Says Dahlgren of his chance to play:

"I was tickled to get a chance, but will gladly step out when Lou is ready to play. I can't hope to duplicate his feats with a bat, but I'm going to do my best."

Says Gehrig of Dahlgren: "Babe is a great kid. He actually had tears in his eyes when he replaced me. I told him to go out there and smack a few. He didn't miss."

Not Lou Gehrig

Durocher Has Brooklyn Dodgers Near Loop Top

By Pat Robinson

NEW YORK, May 6—The freshest bush who ever came up to the big league today is being hailed as a miracle man in Brooklyn where, ordinarily these days, the only miracle man is an undisciplined politician. The freshest bush, of course, is Leo Durocher, and he cheerfully admits the soft impeachment. He even boasts about it as well as his undeniable talents as a "jockey," which in baseball parlance is an hombre who is forever "riding" the opposition.

Leo broke in with the world champion Yankees under the late Miller Huggins. That was back in 1928 when Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and the other famous stars of that team were at their peak.

But was our hero abashed by either the Yanks or the rest of the big league clubs, I should say not. On the contrary, where the ordinary rookie usually timidly listens and learns, the dashing Leo proceeded to point out the faults of the other Yanks and began handing out advice in large quantities.

Nothing daunted him and nobody could stop him. Miller Huggins never tried to check him, for it was the little manager's oft-expressed opinion that Leo had the finest pair of hands he ever saw and was without doubt the greatest fielding shortstop he ever laid an eye on.

Well, time passed and Leo passed on to new pastures—the Reds, the Cardinals and then the Dodgers all had the benefit of his wide experience, wonderful fielding and fine headwork.

Then came a chance to manage the Dodgers and here our hero found himself with a club that had finished seventh and was expected to go nowhere and get there in a hurry.

Dodgers Near Top

But Leo had other ideas. It wasn't long before he had the Dodgers incoated with some of his own boundless energy and not a little of his own smartness and here we find them today just a half game out of first place.

They got off to a shaky start but they never quit trying and yesterday's second straight victory over the Cubs, 6-3, was their sixth win in their last seven starts.

Only those rabid Dodger fans expect them to stay up close to the lead but if heads-up baseball and the old college try will turn the trick, they may fool the experts who tagged them for the second division.

The Giants got off to a nice start on two homers by Bob Seeds, good for four runs, but wound up on the short end of a 7-5 score against the Cardinals.

The Pirates pounded out a 10-7 decision over the Phils and the Reds had to travel 13 heats to get a 5-4 nod over the Bees.

Homers by Fox and Cronin and Rookie Woody Rich's 3-hit pitching enabled the Red Sox to beat Schoolboy Rowe and the Tigers, 4-1, the victory moving them up to first place when the Yanks were beaten by the Indians in 11 innings, 2-1.

The White Sox, still going strong, nosed out the Senators, 2-1, in a southpaw duel between Lee and Kraskauskas and the Athletics pounded out 17 hits to get a 10-5 verdict over the pitcherless Browns.

COLUMBUS, May 6—A shake-up in the Columbus Red Bird lineup loomed today following an announcement by Al Bannister, club president, that he was receiving two players from major squads in an effort to pep-up his American Association team.

Bannister said he had made arrangements to have Elvin C. "Buster" Adams, outfielder, leave the parent St. Louis Cardinals on optional agreement and Pitcher Earl Cook leave the Cincinnati Reds.

The Birds' pitching staff has been faltering badly and is responsible to a great degree for the team being in seventh place. The new players were expected to join the squad within the next few days.

Another $3,000,000 will have been spent on hotel accommodations, in restaurants, bars and night clubs by this time tomorrow night.

The crowd started its trek toward Churchill Downs as the latest of the parties broke up at dawn.

The roads were soon jammed with automobiles, colored boys with metal tipped shoes got out early and began their almost tireless jiggling for what coppers were thrown their way. Hawkers of souvenirs lined the walks and "the winner" could be bought on every corner for fifty cents up.

White shoes and straw hats predominated. Today is Louisville's inauguration of the Summer season, and it was a perfect one. Warm and cloudiness despite predictions of rain for later in the afternoon.

At the track the throng was treated to an improved and beautified layout. For the first time "John Citizen" can sit in a fifty cent seat-first come first served—and bet a dollar on his favorite's nose. While across the way is "room 20" the lavish clubhouse suite for millionaire owners and celebrities.

Nearly 500,000 10 pins were toppled during the bowling season just ended, officials of the Circleville Athletic Club alleys, where the competition was conducted, reported Saturday. The exact number was 499,343, eight teams blasting the maples once each week since early in the Winter season for a total of 30 weeks.

The Albaugh Funeral Co. team, although finishing in second place behind the Coca Colas in the standing, scored the best marks of the season with 73,061 pins against 71,184 for the league champions. In third place in the aggregate score was the Hanley Lefty crew with 64,045, although that team finished in fifth place in the standing. The Mader Funeral service hit for a 63,641 total; Yates-Sinclair service had 60,212; Circleville Produce, 58,132; Merchants Five, 56,556, and Circleville Merchants, 54,512.

Dahlgren, Gehrig's Successor, Former Star Infielder in Pacific Coast Loop

NEW YORK, May 6.—"They also serve who only stand and wait."

Milton said that. He did NOT have a baseball player in mind. But we do. Ellsworth Tenney (Babe) Dahlgren of the Yankees. Several days ago in Detroit, Lou Gehrig walked away from home plate after giving the umpire the lineup for the day and out walked Dahlgren to first base. It was a chance he had been waiting for since 1936 when after playing one year at first base the Red Sox bagged Jimmy Fox, also a first baseman of note, from the Philadelphia A's. Later, bought by the Yankees, Dahlgren had to wait for Gehrig's consecutive games streak to end.

Dahlgren at last had his chance. He stepped to the plate and batted the ball like the Gehrig of old. Probably Dahlgren won't be kept on first. For Lou, right so, will get all the chances he wants to return to the lineup. But at least Dahlgren had his reward—a chance to play.

Coast League Product

Soft spoken, tall and genial Dahlgren has been the highest paid utility player in the majors. His minor league record back-grounded him as a worthy successor to Gehrig, if there can be such a person.

Born in San Francisco in 1912, Dahlgren first attracted notice by his play with his high school team in Frisco. He could play any position. While still a student, the record states, he was signed by the Mission club of the Pacific Coast league, where he played in 1932, '33 and '34. In 1934, with the Mission club, he batted .302, getting 222 hits and 106 runs and 20 home runs.

Purchased by the Red Sox in 1935, he played first throughout the season, winding up with a .263 average. In 1936, Fox joined the Sox and Dahlgren, excess baggage, was sent to Syracuse of the International loop. With Syracuse that season he batted .320.

Plays Third, Too

The Yankees were scouring the scene for a utility infielder for even then Gehrig was a veteran campaigner. Dahlgren was the man picked and in the early days of the 1937 training season, Dahlgren played first for the Yankees. Gehrig was a hold-out at the time. When Gehrig signed, Dahlgren was sent to Newark, the Yankee farm.

With Newark in 1937 Dahlgren played third, and did so good he came back to the Yankees as utility in 1938. His Newark record was .340 in 125 games. Last year Dahlgren played in only 27 games, most of his innings being spent at third.

Says Dahlgren of his chance to play:

"I was tickled to get a chance, but will gladly step out when Lou is ready to play. I can't hope to duplicate his feats with a bat, but I'm going to do my best."

Says Gehrig of Dahlgren: "Babe is a great kid. He actually had tears in his eyes when he replaced me. I told him to go out there and smack a few. He didn't miss."

Not Lou Gehrig

Durocher Has Brooklyn Dodgers Near Loop Top

By Pat Robinson

NEW YORK, May 6—The freshest bushy who ever came up to the big league today is being hailed as a miracle man in Brooklyn where, ordinarily these days, the only miracle man is an undictated politician.

The freshest bushy, of course, is Leo Durocher, and he cheerfully admits the soft impeachment. He even boasts about it as well as his undeniable talents as a "jockey," which in baseball parlance is an hombre who is forever "riding" the opposition.

Leo broke in with the world champion Yankees under the late Miller Huggins. That was back in 1928 when Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and the other famous stars of that team were at their peak.

But was our hero abashed by either the Yanks or the rest of the big league clubs, I should say not. On the contrary, where the ordinary rookie usually timidly listens and learns, the dashing Leo proceeded to point out the faults of the other Yanks and began handing out advice in large quantities.

Nothing daunted him and nobody could stop him. Miller Huggins never tried to check him, for it was the little manager's oft-expressed opinion that Leo had the finest pair of hands he ever saw and was without doubt the greatest fielding shortstop he ever laid an eye on.

Well, time passed and Leo passed on to new pastures—the Reds, the Cardinals and then the Dodgers all had the benefit of his wide experience, wonderful fielding and fine headwork.

Then came a chance to manage the Dodgers and here our hero found himself with a club that had finished seventh and was expected to go nowhere and get there in a hurry.

Dodgers Near Top
But Leo had other ideas. It wasn't long before he had the Dodgers inducted with some of his own boundless energy and not a little of his own smartness and here we find them today just a half game out of first place.

They got off to a shaky start but they never quit trying and yesterday's second straight victory over the Cubs, 6-3, was their sixth win in their last seven starts.

Only those rabid Dodger fans expect them to stay up that close to the lead but if heads-up baseball and the old college try will turn the trick, they may fool the experts who tagged them for the second division.

The Giants got off to a nice start on two homers by Bob Seeds, good for four runs, but wound up on the short end of a 7-5 score against the Cardinals.

The Pirates pounded out a 10-7 decision over the Phils and the Reds had to travel 13 heats to get a 5-4 nod over the Bees.

Homers by Fox and Cronin and Rookie Woody Rich's 3-hit pitching enabled the Red Sox to beat Schoolboy Rowe and the Tigers, 4-1, the victory moving them up to first place when the Yanks were beaten by the Indians in 11 innings, 2-1.

The White Sox, still going strong, nosed out the Senators, 2-1, in a southpaw duel between Lee and Krauskas and the Athletics pounded out 17 hits to get a 10-5 verdict over the pitcherless Browns.

The living room was littered with bits of tissue paper and pieces of blue and pink satin ribbons. Rouge-tipped cigarettes filled the ash trays beside empty bon-bon dishes.

METHODIST CONSOLIDATION TO CHANGE NAME OF LOCAL CHURCH

'Episcopal' Title Lost By Action

Rev. C. F. Bowman Attends Important Meeting In Kansas City

The Circleville Methodist Episcopal church will soon be known as the Circleville Methodist church as a result of the consolidation of churches in the Methodist Uniting Conference now under way in Kansas City, Mo.

The Methodist Episcopal, Methodist Protestant and Methodist Episcopal, South, are being consolidated into one group, known as The Methodist church, of nearly 8,000,000 members.

Circleville is represented at the conference by the Rev. C. F. Bowman, pastor of First Methodist Episcopal church. The Rev. Mr. Bowman went to Kansas City last Sunday. He will return next Friday. The conference will last about three weeks.

The following information concerning the conference is reprinted from the Christian Advocate:

"The Conference must combine and harmonize the disciplines of the Uniting Conferences and arrange the agencies which handle the missionary, educational, temperance, and other organized work of the church.

"During recent months eight committees have been at work preparing recommendations to be considered by the Uniting Conference. These recommendations have been collected in one volume for use by the delegates.

"Among the problems before the Uniting Conference will be the question how to arrange the missionary enterprises of the three churches; whether into one great board, including the women's missionary work and home and foreign missions, or three separate boards with the women's work independent.

"The new church is divided into six jurisdictional conferences, five of them based on geographical regions and the sixth including all Negro Conferences, and overlapping the others geographically. The present effective bishops will be assigned to these jurisdictions. The bishops at work in foreign lands, four in number, will be continued in their present work until the General Conference meets, if the recommendation of the preparation committee is adopted. Hereafter bishops will be elected by the Jurisdictional Conferences, the number to be determined by the General Conference, and ordinarily will do their work within the jurisdiction where they were elected. They will serve, except under certain provisions, within the borders of those jurisdictions.

The banquet will be held in the parish house at 6:30 o'clock. A crowd of 200 is expected.

ASHVILLE U. B. YOUNG PEOPLE PLAN PAGEANT

The pageant "Jesus Calls Us" will be presented in the Ashville United Brethren church, Sunday, in the observance of Young People's Anniversary Day. It will be given at the regular evening service. It is being directed by Mrs. Mae Alexander, superintendent of the Young People's department, and Claude Ward, president of the Christian Endeavor. Esther Marie Ward is pianist, and Robert Cline, soloist.

Those taking part in the play are: Voice, Easter Wallen; Reader, Jeraldine Cline; St. Paul, Wade Canter; Roman Guard, Emerson Cline; Philip William Otterbein, founder of the United Brethren Church, by Claude Ward; Rev. Michael Schlatter, German missionary to America, unnamed; Martin Boehm, one of the founders of the U. B. church, by Wayne Jinks;

Christian Newcomer, early church organizer, by George Forquer; Followers of Newcomer, Steve Cook and Orville Ward; Rev. Francis Clark, founder of Christian Endeavor, by Robert Cline; Young People with Rev. Clark, Ethel Mae Reid, and Viola Ward; Dr. J. P. Landis, first president of the National Christian Endeavor convention, by Earl McClurg;

Dr. Harry F. Shupe, founder of Young People's paper, "The Watchword," by Richard Cook; Christian Evangelism, Amanda Wallen; Christian Education, Hazel McClurg; Christian Science, Pauline Louis; Christian Worship, Garnet McClurg.

The residences of the bishops will be fixed by the United Conference. The Methodist Protestant delegates will elect two bishops on the day before the Uniting Conference meets. Negro Methodists will have more self-government than before, electing their own bishops in the future.

The conference has no power of election. Present officers for the administration agencies that are set up will be continued probably until the first General Conference of the new church, which will meet at a date to be fixed by the Uniting Conference in 1940, in 1941 or in 1942. Many of the powers of the Jurisdictional Conferences cannot be exercised until the General Conference meets.

"The groups which formed the Methodist Protestant Church separated officially from the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1828 in protest against the alleged autocratic power of the bishops and against the failure to give laymembers representation in the General Conference. The Methodist Episcopal church, South, was formed in 1845 after a split in the General Conference of 1844, over the issue of slavery and a sharp division of conviction concerning the power of the General Conference over a bishop. Many former attempts have been made to unite the three churches. The last important one failed by close vote in 1924. For over seventy years Unification has been discussed and urged. The present plan was adopted by great majorities, the last vote being taken in May, 1938, by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South."

Paul Works a Hard Field

In Corinth Paul preached to Jews and Greeks, but the Jews refused to believe his message, so Paul "shook his raiment" in disgust, saying that henceforth he would preach to Gentiles.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Acts 17:16 to 18:17; I Corinthians 2:1-5.

He left the synagogue and went to the house of a certain man named Justus, who worshiped the true God and whose home was very near—"joined hard to the synagogue"—as the Bible says.

Crispus, chief ruler of the synagogue, believed on the Lord and all his household did likewise, so that many of the Corinthians, hearing Paul, and seeing his example, believed and were baptized.

While in Justus' house the Lord came to Paul in a vision, telling him to speak freely, not to be afraid, "for I am with thee, and no man shall set upon thee." (GOLDEN TEXT—Philippians 4:13.)

METHODIST CONSOLIDATION TO CHANGE NAME OF LOCAL CHURCH

'Episcopal' Title Lost By Action

Rev. C. F. Bowman Attends Important Meeting In Kansas City

The Circleville Methodist Episcopal church will soon be known as the Circleville Methodist church as a result of the consolidation of churches in the Methodist Uniting Conference now under way in Kansas City, Mo.

The Methodist Episcopal, Methodist Protestant and Methodist Episcopal, South, are being consolidated into one group, known as The Methodist church, of nearly 8,000,000 members.

Circleville is represented at the conference by the Rev. C. F. Bowman, pastor of First Methodist Episcopal church. The Rev. Mr. Bowman went to Kansas City last Sunday. He will return next Friday. The conference will last about three weeks.

The following information concerning the conference is reprinted from the Christian Advocate:

"The Conference must combine and harmonize the disciplines of the Uniting Conferences and arrange the agencies which handle the missionary, educational, temperance, and other organized work of the church.

"During recent months eight committees have been at work preparing recommendations to be considered by the Uniting Conference. These recommendations with changes made by the Joint Commissions on Unification, have been collected in one volume for use by the delegates.

"Among the problems before the Uniting Conference will be the question how to arrange the missionary enterprises of the three churches; whether into one great board, including the women's missionary work and home and foreign missions, or three separate boards with the women's work independent.

"The new church is divided into six jurisdictional conferences, five of them based on geographical regions and the sixth including all Negro Conferences, and overlapping the others geographically. The present effective bishops will be assigned to these jurisdictions. The bishops at work in foreign lands, four in number, will be continued in their present work until the General Conference meets, if the recommendation of the preparation committee is adopted. Hereafter bishops will be elected by the Jurisdictional Conferences, the number to be determined by the General Conference, and ordinarily will do their work within the jurisdiction where they were elected. They will serve, except under certain provisions, within the borders of those jurisdictions.

Dr. Otto Mees Speaker For Luther League Fete

Dr. Otto Mees, president of Capital university and dean of Ohio college presidents, will be the principal speaker at the annual banquet to be served Tuesday night by members of the Luther League of Trinity Lutheran church in honor of their parents. The banquet will be held in the parish house at 6:30 o'clock. A crowd of 200 is expected.

ASHVILLE U. B. YOUNG PEOPLE PLAN PAGEANT

The pageant "Jesus Calls Us," will be presented in the Ashville United Brethren church, Sunday, in the observance of Young People's Anniversary Day. It will be given at the regular evening service. It is being directed by Mrs. Mae Alexander, superintendent of the Young People's department, and Claude Ward, president of the Christian Endeavor. Esther Marie Ward is pianist, and Robert Cline, soloist.

Those taking part in the play are: Voice, Easter Wallen; Reader, Geraldine Cline; St. Paul, Wade Canter; Roman Guard, Emerson Cline; Philip William Otterbein, founder of the United Brethren Church, by Claude Ward; Rev. Michael Schlatter, German missionary to America, unnamed; Martin Boehm, one of the founders of the U. B. church, by Wayne Jinks;

Christian Newcomer, early church organizer, by George Forquer; Followers of Newcomer, Steve Cook and Orville Ward; Rev. Francis Clark, founder of Christian Endeavor, by Robert Cline; Young People with Rev. Clark, Ethel Mae Reid, and Viola Ward; Dr. J. P. Landis, first president of the National Christian Endeavor convention, by Earl McClurg;

Dr. Harry F. Shupe, founder of Young People's paper, "The Watchword," by Richard Cook; Christian Evangelism, Amanda Wallen; Christian Education, Hazel McClurg; Christian Science, Pauline Louis; Christian Worship, Garnet McClurg.

The residences of the bishops will be fixed by the United Conference. The Methodist Protestant delegates will elect two bishops on the day before the Uniting Conference meets. Negro Methodists will have more self-government than before, electing their own bishops in the future.

The conference has no power of election. Present officers for the administration agencies that are set up will be continued probably until the first General Conference of the new church, will meet at a date to be fixed by the Uniting Conference in 1940, in 1941 or in 1942. Many of the powers of the Jurisdictional Conferences cannot be exercised until the General Conference meets.

"The groups which formed the Methodist Protestant Church separated officially from the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1828 in protest against the alleged autocratic power of the bishops and against the failure to give laymembers representation in the General Conference. The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, was formed in 1845 after a split in the General Conference of 1844, over the issue of slavery and a sharp division of conviction concerning the power of the General Conference over a bishop. Many former attempts have been made to unite the three churches. The last important one failed by close vote in 1924. For over seventy years Unification has been discussed and urged. The present plan was adopted by great majorities, the last vote being taken in May, 1938, by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South."

Dr. Mees is known throughout the Middle West as an outstanding preacher, author, musician and lecturer. He has been president of Capital university for the last 26 years.

Miss Josephine Wolf and Mrs. John Himrod are the banquet chairmen. Eugene Barthelmas will serve as toastmaster. Mary Schreiner and Betty Young are in charge of the dining room. Ned Dresbach and Mildred Wolf are in charge of reservations.

The banquet is not limited to members of the league and their parents. Reservations must be made not later than Monday noon.

Paul Works a Hard Field

In Corinth Paul preached to Jews and Greeks, but the Jews refused to believe his message, so Paul "shook his raiment" in disgust, saying that henceforth he would preach to Gentiles.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Acts 17:16 to 18:17; I Corinthians 2:1-5.

He left the synagogue and went to the house of a certain man named Justus, who worshipped the true God and whose home was very near—"joined hard to the synagogue"—as the Bible says.

Crispus, chief ruler of the synagogue, believed on the Lord and all his household did likewise, so that many of the Corinthians, hearing Paul, and seeing his example, believed and were baptized.

While in Justus' house the Lord came to Paul in a vision, telling him to speak freely, not to be afraid, "for I am with thee, and no man shall set upon thee." (GOLDEN TEXT—Philippians 4:13.)

MAKING GOOD

A BOY wrote to a newspaper advice column recently. He wasn't asking about the propriety of good-night kisses after dates, or what the well-dressed lad should wear on any occasion. The theme of his letter was "What can I do to make good?"

The young letter-writer said he was 17 years old, had one more year of high school, lived in a small town without many opportunities. But, "I have an offer of a job for Summer, and if I make good it may be a permanent one when I finish school." What should he do?

The adviser answered by quoting Henry Ford, who has set up five fundamental principles he considers essential for the success of a boy in any kind of job.

First, he requires neatness, cleanliness and orderliness. These things not only influence other persons' opinion of a boy but have an effect on his own mind and character. Second, he says, investigate the job. That is, find out just what has to be done and how it has been done before. Perhaps, then, it will be possible to do it better than it has ever been done.

Third, make the best of what you know, thus finding out what more you need to know. Fourth, never think you can't do something. Most people can do far more than they think they can, if they are determined to do so. Fifth, save and spend wisely, using money for things that put you ahead of where you were yesterday.

It's good advice for all young people, girls or boys, and wouldn't hurt some of their elders.

FRENCH CHARACTER

ITS distinguished new citizen, Fritz Kreisler, paid France a warm tribute the other day. A Paris newspaper quoted the violinist as saying:

"In a world carried away by the folly of men, France still represents a stronghold in which are intact all ideas which make up human dignity: Honor, liberty and love of art.

"If the pleasantness of living has lost, in the last several months, a little of its reputation, on the other hand it seems accompanied by ancient virtues: Courage, energy and patience. These are the virtues which appeal to my heart."

These, doubtless, are qualities more important to a nation's ultimate place in the history of civilization than military power or empire-building.

Wouldn't it be nice, now, if American families adopted the European procedure and started around the bloc making non-aggression pacts with the neighbors?

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up to find the finest morning of the Spring season, and mighty welcome it was. Enroute to the post did note that the town clock is not operating and from Jeweler Brunner, who has cared for the great timepiece, did learn that it has been out of commission longer than at any time in all its history. Had to be stopped because of tiling being done on the spire roof.

Met Harry Weil, who pridefully displayed a fine leather pocketbook and memorandum sent him by the Eagle Wood-ware Manufacturing Co. at Hamilton. That firm once was known as the Eagle Coopersage when it was in Circleville, but it was moved out about 30 years ago. Now it employs 130 persons and is quite prosperous.

There goes Ed Ebert, acting sub-division manager for the Division of Aid For the Aged. Looking quite well and pleased with his new work. Learned that George Griffith and Guy Pettit, who are ill, are on the road to recovery. Met Pearl

Page, examined an enlarged snapshot she had just received from the photographer, and immediately my fishing ego was deflated to sub zero. There in that picture she stood, exhibiting three great yellow-tails, each of which weighed 15 pounds or more. "I caught many more that day," she said, "but could not hold them up for the picture." The scene was Long Beach, Calif., and the time was after a jaunt out into the Pacific. Seems as though she was the only woman in the party and that eight men looked at her askance when time came to start. She not only caught more fish than any man on the party, thereby winning the cash prize for the occasion, but she piloted the boat back to dock. These facts are more or less respectfully called to the attention of Jim Stout, Clarence Wolf, Mayor Bill, Bish Given, Joe Burns, Bryan Custer, Earl Betz, John Hummel, Earl Smith and others who think they may be good at angling.

On North Court street a chicken escaped from a pen on a poultry truck. Right across the street she ran and I almost struck her with my car. A second car barely missed her. Then she turned and in high gear headed right back to the truck, flew up on it and tried her very best to squeeze back into a pen through the narrow bars. There's a bird with full appreciation of traffic hazards. Laughed so hard at her frantic efforts and sudden change of mind about the desirability of freedom that I tied up traffic for two full changes of lights.

Met John Goeller, who is looking more like himself since regaining 12 pounds lost during a session with flu. Noted a car headed East on Main street and bearing a Pennsylvania license and above that one from India, a bright red one. Didn't know they had licenses for cars there.

In the evening did drive past the infirmary where Tim Wilson was at his daily duty of fishing in the pond there and was advised that if I would remain a while that he would show me how fish should be caught. Tim gets a lot of fun out of his fishing, and he really catches them, too.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN,

HENDERSON VICTOR

WASHINGTON—Leon Henderson owes his Securities and Exchange Commission appointment to the fact that he can say "no" when it would be a lot easier to say "yes" or say nothing.

An obscure member of the Russell Sage Foundation, he broke into the New Deal in the hectic days of 1933 by calmly "no-ing" General Hugh Johnson when that turbulent ex-cavalryman was triumphantly charging windmills. When Johnson got over the shock of Henderson's "no", he promptly impressed the brash young economist into the NRA as Research Director and gave him the job of remedying the evils he had denounced.

Henderson continued to say "no". The more he did so, the more he rose in Administration ranks. When the Supreme Court finally decapitated the Blue Eagle, he was one of its five top-rung bosses. Two years later, while Treasury and other Olympian master minds were exuberantly prophesying a great business boom, Henderson again said "no". This time it was to the President, himself.

Like Johnson, Roosevelt didn't like it. But unlike Johnson he paid no attention to Henderson—then. Eight months later, after Henderson's warning had been amply borne out, Roosevelt summoned him again. This time he listened more attentively.

Henderson reiterated his "no" several times after that. He shook his head when offered the Wage-Hour Administration; also when some of his New Deal intimates wanted to use the monopoly investigation for slap-dash muckraking. And he will probably say "no" to both left-wingers and rightwingers as an SECommissioner.

Stocky, friendly, younger in appearance than his 44 years, Henderson is an ardent liberal. But he is no radical. Level headed and as American as slang, he believes in mixing idealism with the practical. He will fight relentlessly for what he believes is right, but his conception of right is never extremist.

It is significant that two of Henderson's warmest admirers are such contrasting characters as Tommy Corcoran, the Brain Trustster, and Representative Hutton Summers, of Texas, Old Guard chairman of the House Judiciary Committee.

SEC FANTASY

Behind Henderson's appointment to the SEC is an inside story even more amazing than his "no" rise to high position.

It is a fantastic tale of undercover intrigue, grudge fights, petty jealousies and egotistical ambitions, plus plain-and-fancy gouging. Not the least fantastic part of the story is the fact that it never would have happened if Roosevelt had announced Henderson's appointment as SEChairman William Douglas was elevated to the Supreme Court.

There was never any question that Henderson would be appointed. Months

It rather looks as if some of our statesmen at Washington were talking themselves out of the presidency. A wise candidate says little and saws political wood.

Medical Scrapbook

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

We are supposed to write a column which contains 500 words daily. Some days we would like to write a thousand words—or rather, we pick a subject that can be covered only in a thousand words (we never want to write a thousand words)—and some days we think of a subject which peters out in about 100 words. So we are going to assemble some of the short ones, and ask your indulgence if they do not seem to have much continuity.

Concerning the often-urged plan to have a "general going over" once a year just to see if anything is the matter, we like the remark about the family doctor: "With a few questions, a snappy physical examination, he recognizes measles, erysipelas or acute heart failure. He agrees with Mackenzie that when one wishes a flat tire fixed, one renews the advice of the garage man that a thorough overhauling of the car is necessary."

Another point. We have heard recently of a surgeon who said that if he charged only a thousand dollars for an operation, he would lose money. This was in association with a case in which he sewed up the cut in a child's face and charged the parents $5,000. Just along that line, it is not entirely surprising that some of the most famous pirates in history were doctors, notably Captain Blood. (On every pirate ship, according to Dr. Phillip Gosse's learned treatise, "History of Piracy," there was a surgeon who had a regular share in the loot. None of them ever showed any interest in the peaceful practice of his profession, but preferred the prospect of adventure and of the speedy acquisition of wealth under the "Jolly Roger."

Panama has the shortest and yet most comprehensive Health Act in the world. It reads: "Anything which is or may be dangerous to human life or health shall be abolished."

Tact is a valuable asset in life and particularly in a physician. It consists, as Dr. Da Costa, of Philadelphia, said, in telling a squint-eyed man that he has a fine, firm chin.

Mark Twain said that he had achieved the age of 70 by adhering strictly to a schedule in life that would be fatal to anybody else. He made it a rule to go to bed only when he couldn't find anybody to sit up with, and he never got up until he had to. He stuck to food that didn't agree with him until one or the other won out, and he made it a rule never to smoke more than one cigar at a time.

EDITOR'S NOTE:—Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet"; "Indigestion and Constipation"; "Reducing and Gaining"; "Infant Feeding"; "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes"; "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

ELEANOR stretched the goose-neck lamp a little to the right. Her eyes were tired from the bright light that shone on the black and white of her page. She'd been writing since lunch time and now it was late afternoon.

It was February and twilight came early.

A soft ball of snow struck the window beside her and she looked up, a slight frown on her brow. She had hoped to finish the short story she was working on and get it in the evening mail. It was her first offering to a magazine. Phil had urged her not to try short stories for a while, but Phil did not understand her impatience. She could make as much for a short story in a magazine as she was getting from some of her syndicates for an entire novel.

Another ball of snow dissolved against the window pane and she heard the tinkle of Jessica's laughter.

She went to the window. Jessica dissolved in laughter, was making a show of pulling her father on a sled. It was Phil who had thrown the snowballs.

"Time to call a halt!" he shouted at her. "It's Sunday, Nell."

She went back to her desk. After a few minutes Phil came to the door. There was ruddy color in his cheeks and he had gained a little weight. "You look like a country squire," she told him.

"It's after five," he said hesitantly. "You know we promised the Holbrooks we'd go over for a cocktail before supper. If we get there at seven, we won't be back here before our company comes."

Eleanor's brows were knit over a paragraph that bothered her. "Why don't you go along, Phil? I won't be finished for another hour. You can send one of the Holbrook boys back in the car for me."

The car. Yes, the Parrishes had a car. "It would be nice if we could pick up a little second-hand car, Nell. You wouldn't have to walk a mile to the village for your marketing. Also, you might meet my train."

"Like a good little suburban wife" she had teased him, and said no more about it. But, on Christmas morning, she'd led him to what had been an empty garage attached to the house. There the car stood. A shining little coupe with a great car tied to the wheel. It said: "From Mommie and Jessica to Daddy."

At first the old expression had come into Phil's face, but it had faded as Eleanor pointed out the features of the car.

Phil had bought her a violet negligee. The name of an expensive shop was embroidered in a small label on a seam. A month after Christmas when the December bills came in, Eleanor opened the bill from the shop, thinking it had been accidentally addressed to her husband. The negligee had been charged to Mr. Phillip Parrish.

Eleanor stopped at the shop the next time she went to town and paid for it. She never told Phil. He never mentioned it. He had forgotten it.

He said: "Nell, put that away. We've got to go to the Holbrooks. John's put me up for membership in his club and I don't want to do anything to . . . to . . . make things any worse."

"Any worse? Have we done anything?"

He cleared his throat. "No, honey, not intentionally. But Mrs. Holbrook has been to call on you twice and . . . well . . . you haven't returned any calls."

Eleanor put her hands on her hips. If she'd thought that it was a gesture she had picked up from one of her former neighbors, she would have taken them away at once. She said: "Good Lord, Phil! 'Returning calls'! I suppose Jessica and I each ought to return calls and leave cards. Remind me to get her a card case tomorrow."

"When in Rome—" he said, with an attempt at a friendly grin. "Phil, I have work to do. I have a plan for my . . . our future. It doesn't include calls and gossip and making intimacies of my neighbors. When we moved out here, we didn't move into a country club and I'm not going to regulate my life as if it were one. Those women . . ."

"My mother used to say that neighbors who were good neighbors were good friends to have," he said with gentle dignity.

"Umm. Well, my good neighbors drop in to call on me, knowing that I'm working—unless they're deaf—and then they sit down and talk about losing their maid, or getting a maid, and how they strain peas for Junior. They talk about whether skirts are really ever going to get long and will we go back to wearing waists. And all the time I'm thinking about a paragraph I want to write. Manities! 'When in Rome—'"

Phil sat down on a corner of her desk, the way he used to when he came to her office before they were married. His eyes searched her face and then he smiled.

"You ought to really know about those women, Nell. You'd learn something you might want to put in books some day."

"Yes," she said politely.

"Sure. To you, they're the women who pull the world up by the boot straps because they demand comfort and perfection. They're the women who teach their kids manners, and rules of cleanliness and health. They bring them up to consider their responsibility along those lines to other people."

"Go on," she said interestedly. "They're the people who've brought about slum clearance and child labor laws, and raised the standards of education and hygiene. In a mass, my dear. They clothe the naked, and feed the hungry, care for the sick and carry on so that people who are creators can create exclusively while they keep the world together."

She said thoughtfully: "Thank you for telling me that, Phil. You like suburban life, don't you, darling?"

"Why not?" he said. "I lived in a rooming house until I was married. And until now . . . well, what did we have? Here we have people like ourselves, people who have kids and ambitions, people who are knit together by community interests. I like to play games with the men, and talk politics, and feel like a home owner in a small way. Yes, I like it."

"Keep it up and you'll get to congress yet. Honest Phil, the People's Choice." Her tone was bantering, but it was tender and understanding.

He said: "I'll wait for you." She got up at once. "No, my lamb, I'll be ready in fifteen minutes. Tell Annie to give Jessica her supper at once and get her into bed before we get back."

Eleanor did not dismiss the subject from her mind as easily as she banished it from their conversation. She thought about it long into the night.

She would never do a job unless she did it well. She had promised herself that long ago. Being Phil's wife was as much her job as being an author.

If Phil wanted her to be a suburban wife, she would be one. She'd accept the invitation to join the Charity league. She'd go to the Thursday afternoons at the club. She would, she decided, have another baby.

Back of all this was part of the other person—the author—who had decided that the next cycle of her work would be concerned with the women who in a mass were the quiet upholders of their times. The best way to do it was to get at the root of it. This she did not tell herself. It was many years before she realized that she had never been the individual she thought herself.

For Saturday, May 6

A day of stirring events, with the faculties and forces under very high pressure, is read from the predominant lunar and mutual aspects. Elders and long-established organizations may provide the main interest, although new matters are also under excellent maturing. There is a sign of some duplicity or trickiness, calling for vigilance and shrewdness in all dealings. The sentimental, social or domestic qualities also have beneficent auguries for activity and happiness.

Those whose birthday it is are assured an extremely lively and interesting year, with high activity in both old and new affiliations. Elders figure importantly, promising gain. But there is an undercurrent of fraud, treachery or the mysterious. The personal relations afford much gratification.

A child born on this day may be active, enterprising, versatile and responsible, with many intellectual, cultural or social traits. It may have leanings to the mystical.

For Sunday, May 7

Sunday's horoscope is a rather adverse one, with all affairs under a rather baneful planetary sway. Finances, position, even the conventional preoccupations of the day have menacing aspects. Shun litigation and travel, and make changes with much precaution and discretion.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of negligible success, with many difficult or ominous situations arising to thwart and cause concern. There may be litigation and shattered ambitions; travel and change are in jeopardy. Move cautiously on all matters.

A child born on this day may have qualities that may defeat its highest usefulness and ambitions. Possible litigations is in the offing. Travel and change are under detrimental rule.

Like Johnson, Roosevelt didn't like it. But unlike Johnson he paid no attention to Henderson—then. Eight months later, after Henderson's warning had been amply borne out, Roosevelt summoned him again. This time he listened more attentively.

Henderson reiterated his "no" several times after that. He shook his head when offered the Wage-Hour Administration; also when some of his New Deal intimates wanted to use the monopoly investigation for slap-dash muckraking. And he will probably say "no" to both left-wingers and rightwingers as an SEC Commissioner.

Stocky, friendly, younger in appearance than his 44 years, Henderson is an ardent liberal. But he is no radical. Level headed and as American as slang, he believes in mixing idealism with the practical. He will fight relentlessly for what he believes is right, but his conception of right is never extremist.

It is significant that two of Henderson's warmest admirers are such contrasting characters as Tommy Corcoran, the Brain Truster, and Representative Hatton Sumners, of Texas, Old Guard chairman of the House Judiciary Committee.

SEC FANTASY

Behind Henderson's appointment to the SEC is an inside story even more amazing than his "no" rise to high position.

It is a fantastic tale of undercover intrigue, grudge fights, petty jealousies and egotistical ambitions, plus plain-and-fancy gouging. Not the least fantastic part of the story is the fact that it never would have happened if Roosevelt had announced Henderson's appointment as SEC chairman William Douglas was elevated to the Supreme Court.

There was never any question that Henderson would be appointed. Months

It rather looks as if some of our statesmen at Washington were talking themselves out of the presidency. A wise candidate says little and saws political wood.

Medical Scrapbook

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

We are supposed to write a column which contains 500 words daily. Some days we would like to write a thousands words—or rather, we pick a subject that can be covered only in a thousand words (we never want to write a thousands words)—and some days we think of a subject which peters out in about 100 words. So we are going to assemble some of the short ones, and ask your indulgence if they do not seem to have much continuity.

Concerning the often-urged plan to have a "general going over" once a year just to see if anything is the matter, we like the remark about the family doctor: "With a few questions, a snappy physical examination, he recognizes measles, erysipelas or acute heart failure. He agrees with Mackenzie that when one wishes a flat tire fixed, one resents the advice of the garage man that a thorough overhauling of the car is necessary."

Another point. We have heard recently of a surgeon who said that if he charged only a thousand dollars for an operation, he would lose money. This was in association with a case in which he sewed up the cut in a child's face and charged the parents $5,000. Just along that line, it is not entirely surprising that some of the most famous pirates in history were doctors, notably Captain Blood. (On every pirate ship, according to Dr. Phillip Gosse's learned treatise, "History of Piracy," there was a surgeon who had a regular share in the loot. None of them ever showed any interest in the peaceful practice of his profession, but preferred the prospect of adventure and of the speedy acquisition of wealth under the "Jolly Roger.")

Panama has the shortest and yet most comprehensive Health Act in the world. It reads:

"Anything which is or may be dangerous to human life or health shall be abolished."

Tact is a valuable asset in life and particularly in a physician. It consists, as Dr. Da Costa, of Philadelphia, said, in telling a squint-eyed man that he has a fine, firm chin.

Mark Twain said that he had achieved the age of 70 by adhering strictly to a schedule in life that would be fatal to anybody else. He made it a rule to go to bed only when he couldn't find anybody to sit up with, and he never got up until he had to. He stuck to food that didn't agree with him until one or the other won out, and he made it a rule never to smoke more than one cigar at a time.

EDITOR'S NOTE:—Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

ELEANOR stretched the goose-neck lamp a little to the right. Her eyes were tired from the bright light that shone on the black and white of her page. She'd been writing since lunch time and now it was late afternoon.

It was February and twilight came early.

A soft ball of snow struck the window beside her and she looked up, a slight frown on her brow. She had hoped to finish the short story she was working on and get it in the evening mail. It was her first offering to a magazine. Phil had urged her not to try short stories for a while, but Phil did not understand her impatience. She could make as much for a short story in a magazine as she was getting from some of her syndicates for an entire novel.

Another ball of snow dissolved against the window pane and she heard the tinkle of Jessica's laughter.

She went to the window. Jessica, dissolved in laughter, was making a show of pulling her father on a sled. It was Phil who had thrown the snowballs.

"Time to call a halt!" he shouted at her. "It's Sunday, Nell."

She went back to her desk. After a few minutes Phil came to the door. There was a muddy little weight. "You look like a country squire," she told him.

"It's after five," he said hesitantly. "You know we promised the Holbrooks we'd go over for a cocktail before supper. If we get there at seven, we won't be back here before our company comes."

Eleanor's brows were knit over a paragraph that bothered her. "Why don't you go along, Phil? I won't be finished for another hour. You can send one of the Holbrook boys back in the car for me."

The car. Yes, the Parrishes had a car. "It would be nice if we could pick up a little second-hand car, Nell. You wouldn't have to walk a mile to the village for your marketing. Also, you might meet my train."

"Like a good little suburban wife?" she had teased him, and said no more about it.

But, on Christmas morning, she'd led him to what had been an empty garage attached to the house. There the car stood. A shining little coupe with a great card tied to the wheel. It said: "From Mommie and Jessica to Daddy."

At first the old expression had come into Phil's face, but it had faded as Eleanor pointed out the features of the car.

Phil had bought her a violet negligee. The name of an expensive shop was embroidered in a small label on a seam. A month after Christmas when the December bills came in, Eleanor opened the bill from the shop, thinking it had been accidentally addressed to her husband. The negligee had been charged to Mr. Phillip Parrish.

Eleanor stopped at the shop the next time she went to town and paid for it. She never told Phil. He never mentioned it. He had forgotten it.

He said: "Nell, put that away. We've got to go to the Holbrooks. John's put me up for membership in his club and I don't want to do anything to . . . to . . . make things any worse."

"Any worse? Have we done anything?"

He cleared his throat. "No, honey, not intentionally. But Mrs. Holbrook has been to call on you twice and . . . well . . . you haven't returned any calls."

Eleanor put her hands on her hips. If she'd thought that it was a gesture she had picked up from one of her former neighbors, she would have taken them away at once. She said: "Good Lord, Phil! Returning calls! I suppose Jessica and I each ought to return calls and leave cards. Remind me to get her a card case tomorrow."

"When in Rome," he said, with an attempt at a friendly grin. "Phil, I have work to do. I have a plan for my . . . our future. It doesn't include calls and gossip and making intimates of my neighbors. When we moved out here, we didn't move into a country club and I'm not going to regulate my life as if it were one. Those women . . ."

"My mother used to say that neighbors who were good neighbors were good friends to have," he said with gentle dignity.

"Umm. Well, my good neighbors drop in to call on me, knowing that I'm working—unless they're deaf—and then they sit down and talk about losing their maid, or getting a maid, and how they strain peas for Junior. They talk about whether skirts are really ever going to get long and will we go back to wearing waists. And all the time I'm thinking about a paragraph I want to write. Inanities! When in Rome!"

Phil sat down on a corner of her desk, the way he used to when he came to her office before they were married. His eyes searched her face and then he smiled.

"You ought to really know about those women, Nell. You'd learn something you might want to put in books some day."

"Yes?" she said politely.

"Sure. To you, they're the women who pull the world up by the boot straps because they demand comfort and perfection. They're the women who teach their kids manners, and rules of cleanliness and health. They bring them up to consider their responsibility along those lines to other people."

"Go on," she said interestedly.

"They're the people who've brought about slum clearance and child labor laws, and raised the standards of education and hygiene. In a mass, my dear. They clothe the naked, and feed the hungry, care for the sick and carry on so that people who are creators create exclusively while they keep the world together."

She said thoughtfully: "Thank you for telling me that, Phil. You like suburban life, don't you, darling?"

"Why not?" he said. "I lived in a rooming house until I was married. And until now . . . well, what did we have? Here we have people like ourselves, people who have kids and ambitions, people who are knit together by community interests. I like to play games with the men, and talk politics, and feel like a home owner in a small way. Yes, I like it."

"Keep it up and you'll get to congress yet. Honest Phil, the People's Choice." Her tone was bantering, but it was tender and understanding.

He said: "I'll wait for you."

She got up at once. "No, my lamb, I'll be ready in fifteen minutes. Tell Annie to give Jessica her supper at once and get her into bed before we get back."

Eleanor did not dismiss the subject from her mind as easily as she banished it from their conversation. She thought about it long into the night.

She would never do a job unless she did it well. She had promised herself that long ago. Being Phil's wife was as much her job as being an author.

If Phil wanted her to be a suburban wife, she would be one. She'd accept the invitation to join the Charity league. She'd go to the Thursday afternoons at the club. She would, she decided, have another baby.

Back of all this was part of the other person—the author—who had decided that the next cycle of her work would be concerned with the women who in a mass were the quiet uplifers of their times. The best way to do it was to get at the root of it. This she did not tell herself. It was many years before she realized that she had never been the individual she thought herself.

STARS SAY—

For Saturday, May 6

A day of stirring events, with the faculties and forces under very high pressure, is read from the predominant lunar and mutual aspects. Elders and long-established organizations may provide the main interest, although new matters are also under excellent stimuli. There is a sign of some duplicity or trickiness, calling for vigilance and shrewdness in all dealings. The sentimental, social or domestic qualities also have beneficent auguries for activity and happiness.

Those whose birthday it is are assured an extremely lively and interesting year, with high activity in both old and new affiliations. Elders figure importantly, promising gain. But there is an undercurrent of fraud, treachery or the mysterious. The personal relations afford much gratification.

A child born on this day may be active, enterprising, versatile and respectable, with many intellectual, cultural or social traits. It may have leanings to the mystical.

For Sunday, May 7

Sunday's horoscope is a rather adverse one, with all affairs under a rather baneful planetary sway. Finances, position, even the conventional preoccupations of the day have menacing aspects. Shun litigation and travel, and make changes with much precaution and discretion.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of negligible success, with many difficult or ominous situations arising to thwart and cause concern. There may be litigation and shattered ambitions; travel and change are in jeopardy. Move cautiously in all matters.

A child born on this day may have qualities that may defeat its highest usefulness and ambitions. Possible litigations is in the offing. Travel and change are under detrimental rule.

Garden Club Gathers At M. E. Noggle Home

Work On Junior Organizations To Start

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Noggle of W. Union street opened their home and garden Friday to the members of the Pickaway County Garden club for the May meeting.

The group gathered at 7:30 p. m. and made a twilight tour of the garden, now gay in its array of Spring blossoms which include various rock garden plants, tulips, lilacs, pansies, narcissi and various blooming shrubs.

The business meeting was called to order by Mrs. C. K. Hunsicker, club president, the minutes of the previous meeting and roll call being read by Mrs. G. G. Campbell, secretary.

Mrs. Donald H. Watt gave the treasurer's report and announced that the various city schools had donated to the Children's Forest Project, the following amounts: High street, $2.11; Franklin, $2.63; Walnut, $4 cents and Corwin, $4.11, a total of $9.69. This amount has been forwarded to the project headquarters.

The secretary read an invitation received by Mrs. Orion King, inviting the club members to the exhibit of the Iris Society to be held May 27 and 28, at the Columbus Art Gallery. Local members were also asked to make exhibits if they so desired.

The club donated $5 to the Field Army of Cancer Control.

Mrs. Hunsicker announced that Mrs. M. G. Fenton, district president, had requested the local club to sponsor Junior Garden Clubs. She appointed Mrs. James P. Moffitt to head the organization of that work. Mrs. Moffitt announced that the sixth grade of Franklin street school, Miss Lucille Neuding teacher, had organized a club, and said that she would talk to them on organization work. Support of the club was pledged in the Junior club work.

Mrs. Moffitt, who heads the committee for the club Flower Show, asked the clubs' wishes in regard to holding a Spring Flower Show. Action was taken to hold a show in the near future. Mrs. Moffitt will appoint committees to assist her with the work. The date and place will be announced later.

At the close of the business session, Mrs. Hunsicker announced that for the evening's program, Leslie Pontius would show color slides of Yellowstone National Park. Mr. Pontius visited there last August and obtained many splendid color films of wild animals and natural scenery. Beyond description was the beauty of the various hot and cold springs, gorgeous vegetation, mountains and waterfalls. He told of the protection given the wild animals by the government and how price ranges are kept within reach of all for food and supplies within the boundaries of the park, by government supervision. Mr. Pontius displayed some interesting views of the black bears, the grizzlies and wild moose, all of which were taken at a distance involving some danger of attack.

GARDEN-GRAPH

Layering Grape Vines To Fill Vacancies

Layering is a convenient and useful method of filling a vacancy in an established grape vine planting. All grapes propagate easily by layering, although it is usually only resorted to with varieties which do not root well from cuttings.

Use a one-year-old cane, as shown in the Garden-Graph. Dig a hole six or eight inches deep where the gap or vacancy exists in the vineyard. Then fasten down a portion of the cane as illustrated. Let the tip bend upwards and protrude out of the ground so that at least two buds are showing. Do not sever from the parent vine for two or three seasons.

A healthy grape vine should be productive for at least 50 years. Success in grape growing, however, depends upon the method of pruning. Pruning should take into consideration the fact that fruit ent season, which in turn sprouts from wood of the previous season.

vice president; Miss Sally May and George Mallett were reelected secretary and treasurer, respectively.

Mrs. Walter Downing was in charge of the meeting and received the year reports of the secretary and treasurer. The slate of officers presented by the nominating committee was unanimously elected.

The entertaining program included a variety of readings by Mrs. Leslie Canup and O. C. Creighton of Atlanta. Jean Creighton and Ray Creighton rounded out the program with piano selections including many solos and duets.

There was a splendid attendance at the meeting which will be the last until Fall.

Birthday Party

Honoring Mrs. Ollie Stout, Mrs. Walter Stout and Mrs. Orin Stout entertained a group of her friends at a birthday party Friday afternoon in the Stout home, N. Pickaway street.

The guests included Mrs. Sadie Leist, Mrs. A. B. Glick, Mrs. M. M. Bowman, Mrs. Walter Leist, Miss Nellie Bolender, Mrs. Herbert Leist, Mrs. Lawrence Warner, Mrs. Dan Bowman, Miss Bessie Bowman, Mrs. Edward Leist, Mrs. Clyde Leist, Miss Ellen Leist of the Circleville community; Mrs. Fred Hosler, Mrs. Robert Uncles and Mrs. Cora Hoover of Columbus and Mrs. Ella Will of Amanda.

Green and pink were used in the decorations for the affair. Tall candles lighted the table centered with a lovely birthday cake where lunch was served by the hostesses at the close of the informal social afternoon.

Senior Class Play

Friday night, an audience which filled the high school auditorium to capacity, breathlessly responsive to finer points of the acting of the Seniors in their class play, spurred them on to a new high in amateur production for Circleville.

All the small difficulties of the first night were smoothed out and with the confidence won through repetition, the blond Abby (Miss Mary Hays) and brunet Mrs. Haggett (Miss Virginia Gussman) of the second night cast were ably assisted by the other seasoned players.

The unfolding of the story, odd, amusing and hilarious, has beneath it at all times the wistful, deep abiding love of Abby for her dead lover. Of all people in the play, she alone sensed his aspirations and basked in the glow of his soul. Respect and admiration for her faithfulness to his memory drew everyone close to her.

Mrs. Haggett, with her scheming ways, was always ready to back her husband, in his efforts to gain his ends through well thought out plans, which always seemed about to succeed but never did. His was a heavy part and artistically handled throughout.

The music of the high school orchestra under the direction of C. F. Zaenglein was much enjoyed both nights.

A gift from the Seniors was presented Samuel Johnson, dramatics coach, by Miss Ruth Clark, after the second act of the Friday performance.

Mr. Johnson congratulated the cast on the good job it was doing with this play, one of the most pretentious undertakings of the high school in dramatics.

The business and technical staffs were the same for both performances.

MARY WALTERS AND F. FISCHER OFFER PROGRAM

Monday afternoon the poetry club was host to two guest speakers, Miss Mary Walters and Mr. Frank Fischer. This program was part of their study of poetry in foreign languages.

Miss Walters discussed French and Spanish poetry. Before she read the foreign lyrics, she gave an English translation so that the girls might be able to follow her.

Mr. Fischer spoke on German verse. He told of some old German customs in his own family and some formerly practiced in Circleville. He cited Goethe, Heine, and Schiller as the foremost German poets.

Those attending this meeting besides club members were: Mrs. Brunelle Downing, and Misses Margaret Mattinson, Eleanor Ryan, and Harriet Walters.

Monday evening the initiation dinner was held at Sylvia's party home for the five girls who recently joined this organization.

Following the dinner the initiates furnished the program of which Helen Beck was in charge.

The following selections were presented: "To Celia," vocal solo, Mary Kathryn Pile; "Old Houses" and "New Houses," recitations by Marie Lay; and "Who is Sylvia?", vocal solo, Regina Thornton. Besides these, each girl read one of her own original poems.

Because of a cold, Miss Sayre was not able to give a Shakespearean reading. She will, however, present one at some future meeting.

Next week Miss Rooney will explain some types of poetry to the club as a preparation for the original poem contest.

RESERVES PLAN ANNUAL DINNER

At the weekly meeting of the Senior Girl Reserves, Monday, the topic for discussion was Achievement Week. This will be from May 8-13, and includes all handwork completed by the girls during the year. Included in this group are hobbies, posters, embroidery, painting, and attractive covers for booklets. Any Senior Girl Reserve is eligible to enter. Prizes will be awarded to the best in each group.

Evadell Elliott and Isabelle Noggle will act as chairmen of this event, with Norma Jeanne Betts, Mary Fickard, Helen Evans, Marjorie Fausnaugh, Ruth Gard, Margaret Goad, Imogene Justice, and Thelma Winner as their aides. These girls are in charge of all entries and will also help judge them.

Election of officers for 1939-40 will be held May 15. Miss Elma Rains, club adviser, gave a short talk on the selection of officers and stressed the importance of great consideration in the choice of a president and a treasurer. In choosing a president and treasurer, the following test should be applied: "Has the girl in consideration initiative; is she friendly, polite, and considerate of others?" If the answer is "Yes," that girl would make an excellent president.

A treasurer should be trustworthy, painstaking, intelligent, quick and alert. The treasurer has been brought more and more into the limelight and even more so, since the bookkeeping system has been initiated in the high school. Miss Rains stated that each girl should consider the above details and be prepared to vote at the meeting on the fifteenth.

May 21 the Senior Girl Reserves will attend the Presbyterian Church in a body. The time will be announced later.

H. BECK'S ESSAY

EDITORIAL

GIRL RESERVES

When a girl is invited to join the Girl Reserve club of Circleville high school, she is informed of the many responsibilities which will be hers to master. First, the girl must have a real desire to become a younger sister of the Young Women's Christian Association, or as I prefer to call it, "the circle of light." She must not think of joining just because of the social life it will bring her, but she should concentrate on the worthwhile activities, and the betterment of herself.

In Circleville high school, the Girl Reserve idea has grown to such an extent that it has been necessary for two clubs to be formed—a Junior organization with freshmen and sophomore girls, and a Senior club consisting of junior and senior girls. Both have an adviser, and an advisory council, a president, vice president, secretary, and treasurer. All strive for the same purpose—to give such training to the girls that they may take their proper place in the community as fine citizens.

Each girl is given a chance to plan with others, to direct, and also to receive orders. Stress is laid on manners, consideration for others, community responsibilities, and planning the immediate and future life.

Programs that are planned, try to bring out the best, the talents, and the personalities of all members. We attempt to have a variety of activities, both social and business, to interest the prominent men and women of Circleville.

A Girl Reserve should be an outstanding member of Circleville high school because of the extra training that she has received, the thoughtful guidance of the adviser, and the friendships she has formed.

"To find and give the best," is the Girl Reserve purpose. This purpose might well be carried out by everyone, even though he is not affiliated with the Girl Reserves.

CLASS PRESENTS
'39 PRODUCTION

Thursday and Friday evenings, the Senior class of Circleville high school presented "The Late Christopher Bean" in the auditorium.

One of the most unusual parts of the show was the fact that many of the decorations were made by two high school art students, Frank Beck and Miriam Weaver. The remainder of the set design was done by Schell Scenic-Painting Studio of Columbus.

Previews of the show were given in an assembly, Wednesday at 10:50. All of the characters were introduced. Four of five scenes of the first two acts were presented.

Mr. Johnson extends his thanks to the following people, who lent the class properties: Mrs. Lloyd Hoffman, Mrs. A. Hulse Hays, Mrs. M. C. Kirkwood, Mr. L. R. Liston, Mrs. Percy May, Mrs. Emma Shellhammer, Mrs. William Hoffman, Mrs. Howard Moore, Mrs. Gertrude Shellhammer, Dr. E. L. Montgomery, Mrs. F. R. Beck, Mrs. Frank McGinnis, Mr. John Goeller, and Mr. Frank Fischer.

CORRECTION

The name of Lois Madison was omitted from the fifth six-week's honor roll published in the last issue of the Red and Black. Lois' average was 3.5.

NAT. MUSIC WEEK

TO BE OBSERVED IN CITY SCHOOLS

Next week, National Music Week will be observed in Circleville high school by the music and art classes.

On Wednesday morning at 10:45 in the auditorium, the Senior Girls' Glee Club and Mixed Glee Club will offer a program of selections which they have learned during the school year.

Wednesday afternoon, the seventh and eighth grades are inviting their parents and other guests to their regular music classes, which will be at 1:30 and 12:45, respectively, in the auditorium.

"Our idea," said Miss Grace Teegarden, "is not to have programs to entertain the parents, but to allow them to see our regular classroom work. In our regular classes during Music Week we are going to demonstrate the various things we have done during the year."

Mrs. Brunelle Downing also announced that there will be a display in the art room all week, May 8 to 12, of work done by the Sketch Club, Pencil and Brush Club, and seventh grade, eighth grade, and high school art classes. Featured in this display will be the series of hats drawn by Miriam Weaver to illustrate her recent talk to the Monday Club.

Properties for the senior class play, "The Late Christopher Bean," were done by Miriam Weaver and Frank Beck. Miriam drew a composite portrait of Mary Hays and Ruth Montellus, who played the part of Abbie, the servant. This portrait was displayed in the window of Crist's department store Thursday and will be on display in the art room every day next week, as will the other paintings used in the play.

Work On Junior
Organizations
To Start

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Noggle of W. Union street opened their home and garden Friday to the members of the Pickaway County Garden club for the May meeting.

The group gathered at 7:30 p. m. and made a twilight tour of the garden, now gay in its array of Spring blossoms which include various rock garden plants, tulips, lilacs, pansies, narcissi and various blooming shrubs.

The business meeting was called to order by Mrs. C. K. Hunsicker, club president, the minutes of the previous meeting and roll call being read by Mrs. G. G. Campbell, secretary.

Mrs. Donald H. Watt gave the treasurer's report and announced that the various city schools had donated to the Children's Forest Project, the following amounts: High street, $2.11; Franklin, $2.63; Walnut, 84 cents and Corwin, $4.11, a total of $9.69. This amount has been forwarded to the project headquarters.

The secretary read an invitation received by Mrs. Orion King, inviting the club members to the exhibit of the Iris Society to be held May 27 and 28, at the Columbus Art Gallery. Local members were also asked to make exhibits if they so desired.

The club donated $5 to the Field Army of Cancer Control.

Mrs. Hunsicker announced that Mrs. M. G. Fenton, district president, had requested the local club to sponsor Junior Garden Clubs. She appointed Mrs. James P. Moffitt to head the organization of that work. Mrs. Moffitt announced that the sixth grade of Franklin street school, Miss Lucille Neuding teacher, had organized a club, and said that she would talk to them on organization work. Support of the club was pledged in the Junior club work.

Mrs. Moffitt, who heads the committee for the club Flower Show, asked the clubs' wishes in regard to holding a Spring Flower Show. Action was taken to hold a show in the near future. Mrs. Moffitt will appoint committees to assist her with the work. The date and place will be announced later.

At the close of the business session, Mrs. Hunsicker announced that for the evening's program, Leslie Pontius would show color slides of Yellowstone National Park. Mr. Pontius visited there last August and obtained many splendid color films of wild animals and natural scenery. Beyond description was the beauty of the various hot and cold springs, gorgeous vegetation, mountains and waterfalls. He told of the protection given the wild animals by the government and how price ranges are kept within reach of all for food and supplies within the boundaries of the park, by government supervision. Mr. Pontius displayed some interesting views of the black bears, the grizzlies and wild moose, all of which were taken at a distance involving some danger of attack.

One picture of note was taken of plants growing in the water of one of the hot springs, the plant life thriving with a torrid temperature. He closed his display with

Layering Grape Vines To Fill Vacancies

Layering is a convenient and useful method of filling a vacancy in an established grape vine planting. All grapes propagate easily by layering, although it is usually only resorted to with varieties which do not root well from cuttings.

Use a one-year-old cane, as shown in the Garden-Graph. Dig a hole six or eight inches deep where the gap or vacancy exists in the vineyard. Then fasten down a portion of the cane as illustrated. Let the tip bend upwards and protrude out of the ground so that at least two buds are showing. Do not sever from the parent vine for two or three seasons.

A healthy grape vine should be productive for at least 50 years. Success in grape growing, however, depends upon the method of pruning. Pruning should take into consideration the fact that fruit season, which in turn sprouts from wood of the previous season.

Circleville public schools will hold open house every day next week, during which time we hope the public will visit the various schools and observe classes, as well as attend the music and art programs. Classes will be conducted in the usual manner, and the public will be able to see them as they do their regular work.

JR.-SR. BANQUET
PLANS PROGRESS

Thursday, May 4, members of the junior class met in room 204 to discuss the forthcoming Junior-Senior banquet which will be held May 26.

Reports were made by the following chairmen on the progress of the different committees; Pat Bennett, invitations; Marilyn Lutz, seating arrangement; Jack Clifton, orchestra; Hulse Hays, decorations; and William Lutz, programs. Memorial Hall, where the banquet is to be held, will be decorated according to Dutch landscaping. On one side of the hall a windmill will be constructed; on the other side, a light-house flashing varied color lights upon the dancers. A small white picket fence will enclose the dance floor and the orchestra shell. Tulips of every color dominate the color scheme of the decorations. The Highhatters, an orchestra from Lancaster, Ohio, has been engaged to furnish music during the evening.

At their last meeting the Juniors chose their class flower and class colors. Thursday from a group of mottoes submitted by a committee the class chose this one: "Today we follow; tomorrow we lead."

Paul Walters, president, appointed Thelma Winner, chairman, Betty Jackson, Marjorie Fausnaugh, and Isabelle Noggle as a committee to see Miss Pigman and arrange for twenty-five freshmen girls to serve at the banquet.

Another club meeting is scheduled soon to make the final arrangements for the Junior-Senior banquet.

CHS SQUADS WIN
FROM GROVEPORT

Tuesday, May 2, the Circleville high school track and golf teams traveled to Groveport for a dual meet. Both of Circleville's teams came out on top.

The score of the track meet was 63½ to 40½. The leading scorer was Robert Owens who took three first places and a tie for another first with his team mate, Robert Liston.

CLASS PRESENTS
'39 PRODUCTION

Thursday and Friday evenings, the Senior class of Circleville high school presented "The Late Christopher Bean" in the auditorium.

One of the most unusual parts of the show was the fact that many of the decorations were made by two high school art students, Frank Beck and Miriam Weaver. The remainder of the settings were done by Schell Scenic-Painting Studio of Columbus.

Previews of the show were given in an assembly, Wednesday at 10:50. All of the characters were introduced. Four of five scenes of the first two acts were presented.

Mr. Johnson extends his thanks to the following people, who lent the class properties: Mrs. Lloyd Hoffman, Mrs. A. Hulse Hays, Mrs. M. C. Kirkwood, Mr. L. R. Liston, Mrs. Percy May, Mrs. Emma Shellhammer, Mrs. William Hoffman, Mrs. Howard Moore, Mrs. Gertrude Shellhammer, Dr. E. L. Montgomery, Mrs. F. R. Beck, Mrs. Frank McGinnis, Mrs. John Goeller, and Mr. Frank Fischer.

DAIRY MAIDS APPEARING ON THEATRE RADIO HOUR

The Singing Dairy Maids from Greenville, winners of an Ohio Search For Talent Contest, will be the guest stars on the Chakeres-Warners "Swingtime" broadcast, Saturday, at 11:30 through WHIO in Dayton. Dressed in coy little milk-maid costumes, Margaret, Agnes and Eunice the latter two which are twins, will sing "Alice in Wonderland" and "Wait Until the Cows Come Home".

Broadcast directly from the State theatre in Springfield, Chakeres "Swingtime" program will also feature a Community Sing in which the audience joins in as the words are flashed on the screen and Oliver Nicklas provides the accompaniment on the Wurlitzer organ. Another highlight of the program is the weekly "Guessing Quiz." Manager Joe Wheeler of the Grand theatre is cooperating with the broadcast and will give free, two passes to each of the first 100 listeners who send in the correct title of the "mystery song" which Mr. Nicklas plays on the "Swingtime" program. Following the broadcast the State theatre audience will see a Hollywood "sneak" preview of a coming attraction.

AT THE GRAND
The Cisco Kid, O. Henry's lovable desperado brought to the screen by Warner Baxter again in "The Return of the Cisco Kid," has been very much alive since he was first brought to "life" in "In Old Arizona."

Ten years ago, in what was the first all-talking outdoor picture theatre created the character for the screen and won the Academy Award. Since then the film has never lost its popularity. It's a real favorite in the Argentine, in Arabic countries and in other sections of the world where the adventuresome life is the daily one.

AT THE CLIFTONA
Although the title of their first co-starring picture, showing Sunday at the Cliftona theatre, is "Lucky Night," Robert Taylor and Myrna Loy ignore all superstitions and kiss thirteen times in it.

A new departure for Taylor, giving him his first real comedy role in his five years as a screen actor, "Lucky Night" permits Miss Loy to tread on familiar ground, for her role is not dissimilar from those she played in "The Thin Man" series, "Libeled Lady," "Double Wedding" and "Too Hot to Handle," a modern American girl gleaming all the fun possible out of life.

Produced by Louis D. Lighton and directed by Norman Taurog, the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture also has Douglas Fowley, Henry O'Neill, Marjorie Main, Bernadette Hayes, Bernard Nedell, Joseph Allen, Jr., and Charles Lane in the cast.

er Barkley and holder of a temporary Maritime commissionship; Milton Katz, Landis protege who quit the SEC when Douglas became chairman and is now with the Anti-Trust Division of the Justice Department; also Allen MacRuffie, in the SEC's New York office, who was erroneously publicized as one of the authors of the securities act.

These young men looked much better to Wall Street than Henderson. So various powerful traders adopted the strategy of harpooning Henderson by boosting the much milder young officials in the SEC.

One Wall Streeter even went to the length of calling on Chester Lane, able young SEC general counsel, and urged him to try for Henderson's job. Then leaving Lane's office, he went to Henderson and told him Lane was opposing him. This trick came near causing a fight between Henderson and Lane, but it was discovered just before the explosion.

Several other big brokers lobbied against Henderson on Capitol Hill in an effort to make the White House drop him. Others tried to induce Ganson Purcell and Sam Clark, two Douglas proteges in the SEC, to drum up political backing for their candidates. But like Lane they kept strict hands off.

Had Roosevelt not finally bestirred himself and put an end to the turmoil by appointing Henderson, it is hard to say what would have happened to SEC morale. The agency had become a seething cauldron and was about to boil over with devastating effect to all concerned. As it is, the job of placating ruffled feeling and restoring harmony is going to be one of the big jobs of Leon Henderson when he finally steps into the job which was delayed too long.

But here they ran into trouble. For the SEC elects its own chairman among its five members, and the two Republican members balked. They are George C. Mathews, massive Wisconsin conservative, and Robert E. Healy, a conscientious New Englander.

Hitherto both had cooperated with the Administration. Both had voted for Douglas, and for other Democratic chairman—Joe Kennedy and Jim Landis. But this time they kicked over the traces—each for different reasons.

Mathews wanted the chairmanship himself. Healy was irked over a disagreement with Douglas, who forced the resignation of C. Roy Smith, director of SEC's utility division.

Douglas demanded Smith's ouster after a secret investigation of the meddling of certain of his subordinates in the internal affairs of a big utility corporation, Standard Gas and Electric. Healy defended Smith, who was his man. But Douglas, with the backing of Jerome Frank and New Deal Commissioner Edward Eicher, fired him. (Smith's resignation, still unannounced, is effective July 1)

Healy said nothing to Frank at the time, but apparently held this against him. And when asked to vote for Frank as chairman, he stalled. Later Healy went to the extent of writing Roosevelt a personal letter saying he could not see his way clear to cooperate.

With the door thus slammed in his face, the President had no choice but to leave the chairmanship question unsettled and to send Henderson's name to the Senate. For Henderson's vote would give him the three votes necessary to elect a chairman.

Frantic Scramble
While this personal drama was taking place, a group of red-hot SEC hopefuls took advantage of the situation to stage a scramble for the vacant commissionership. Everybody wanted the job.

Chief scramblers were Max Truitt, son-in-law of Senate Leader

The Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

before, he had been offered the next vacant SEC chair. Had Roosevelt acted with dispatch in filling Douglas' shoes, the SEC, Henderson and various others would have been spared a lot of needless churning.

Reason for Roosevelt's delay was the desire to have Commissioner Jerry Frank made SEC chairman before Henderson's appointment was announced. This, according to White House master minds, would have smoothed the way for Leon's Senate confirmation, which they frankly felt was not going to be easy.

While no radical, Henderson is a hard-fisted, hard-boiled regulator, and Wall Street doesn't like him. Particularly they don't like him at this exact moment, when they have seen the mirage of business appeasement. So Roosevelt feared that Wall Street, plus Senatorial friends of big business, would stage a fight if—and this was the crux of the thing—this thought the big "no" man of the New Deal was going to become SEC chairman. As a mere commissioner of the SEC, his confirmation would be much easier.

So White House strategists proposed to take the curse off Henderson by making Jerry Frank chairman first.

Two Republicans

But here they ran into trouble. For the SEC elects its own chairman among its five members, and the two Republican members balked. They are George C. Mathews, massive Wisconsin conservative, and Robert E. Healy, a conscientious New Englander.

Hitherto both had cooperated with the Administration. Both had voted for Douglas, and for other Democratic chairman—Joe Kennedy and Jim Landis. But this time they kicked over the traces—each for different reasons.

Mathews wanted the chairmanship himself. Healy was irked over a disagreement with Douglas, who forced the resignation of C. Roy Smith, director of SEC's utility division.

Douglas demanded Smith's ouster after a secret investigation of the meddling of certain of his subordinates in the internal affairs of a big utility corporation, Standard Gas and Electric. Healy defended Smith, who was his man. But Douglas, with the backing of Jerome Frank and New Deal Commissioner Edward Elmer, fired him. (Smith's resignation, still unannounced, is effective July 1.)

Healy said nothing to Frank at the time, but apparently held this against him. And when asked to vote for Frank as chairman, he stalled. Later Healy went to the extent of writing Roosevelt a personal letter saying he could not see his way clear to cooperate.

With the door thus slammed in his face, the President had no choice but to leave the chairmanship question unsettled and to send Henderson's name to the Senate. For Henderson's vote would give him the three votes necessary to elect a chairman.

Frantic Scramble

While this personal drama was taking place, a group of red-hot SEC hopefuls took advantage of the situation to stage a scramble for the vacant commissionership. Everybody wanted the job.

Chief scramblers were Max Truitt, son-in-law of Senate Leader Barkley and holder of a temporary Maritime commissionership; Milton Katz, Landis protege who quit the SEC when Douglas became chairman and is now with the Anti-Trust Division of the Justice Department; also Allen MacRuffie, in the SEC's New York office, who was erroneously publicized as one of the authors of the securities act.

These young men looked much better to Wall Street than Henderson. So various powerful traders adopted the strategy of harpooning Henderson by boosting the much milder young officials in the SEC.

One Wall Streeter even went to the length of calling on Chester Lane, able young SEC general counsel, and urged him to try for Henderson's job. Then leaving Lane's office, he went to Henderson and told him Lane was opposing him. This trick came near causing a fight between Henderson and Lane, but it was discovered just before the explosion.

Several other big brokers lobbied against Henderson on Capitol Hill in an effort to make the White House drop him. Others tried to induce Ganson, Purcell and Sam Clark, two Douglas proteges in the SEC, to drum up political backing for their candidates. But like Lane they kept strict hands off.

Had Roosevelt not finally bestirred himself and put an end to the turmoil by appointing Henderson, it is hard to say what would have happened to SEC morale. The agency had become a seething cauldron and was about to boil over with devastating effect to all concerned. As it is, the job of placating ruffled feeling and restoring harmony is going to be one of the big jobs of Leon Henderson when he finally steps into the job which was delayed too long.

FOUR GUARDED IN BRUTAL DEATH OF ARKANSAS GIRL

PINE BLUFF, Ark., May 6—Four persons were held under close guard today in connection with the brutal slaying of 19-year-old Irene Taylor, whose ravished body was recovered from a swamp yesterday.

The four, all Negroes, are a woman about 50, a girl 15, and two youths around 20. Sheriff Garland Brewster refused to reveal their names.

He said that two of the prisoners had confessed the killing, giving as their motive that "Irene had a pretty box of candy."

Sheriff Brewster said he learned the girl had been seized as she was walking near a cemetery and that the killers had later thrown her body in a nearby bayou after it had been weighted and tied with wire. It was found in fifteen feet of water.

VILLAGE SEEKS TO RETAIN ITS GRADE SCHOOL

Darbyville Community Meets To Discuss Campaign To Halt Obliteration

cluding 88 in the grades and 32 in the high school.

Filing of the two petitions with the county board of education followed the action of the State High School board. They have complicated the school's problem in that transfer of territory includes grade pupils and if granted will reduce the enrollment to a point that there is danger of the grade school being closed. The two sections of territory involved in the petitions contain 35 to 40 grade and high school pupils.

Dr. E. A. Secoy, Darbyville, mayor, contended that there seemed to be considerable misunderstanding concerning the petitions. "The word was spread around that the whole school would be sent to Monroe," the doctor said. "I don't think the people want to stand for it. Why should the whole school be obliterated? The people have a perfect right to maintain the grade school even if we do lose the high school."

George D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools, explained that the problem of the Muhlenberg high school was one that had been developing for many years. "You realize that it is impossible to maintain a satisfactory high school with an enrollment of only 32 pupils," he said. "There was no thought that the grade school be affected at all."

"If we want to hold our elementary school we better go to work and work hard," Mr. Renick said.

Mr. McDowell was surprised that there was a misunderstanding in the territory that the grade school was affected.

Although the recommendation of the Ohio High School board was that Muhlenberg district be joined with Monroe, parents of high school pupils seemed divided on their opinions as to where their children should attend schools. Some in outlying sections of the Muhlenberg district desired that their children attend schools other than Monroe due to nearness to these schools. Districts surrounding Muhlenberg are Jackson, Monroe, Scioto and Darby.

The petitions for territory transfers were accepted by the county board and tabled for 30 days, the period required by law during which protests may be filed.

PITTSBURGH, May 6—The Federal Bureau of Investigation announced today it had recovered $111,732.32 of the $117,590 taken from the Clintonville, Pa., National bank when it was held up by three men in 1938. Negotiable and non-negotiable securities to that amount were found in a secret cache in Lawrence county, near the Pennsylvania-Ohio line three days ago, agents said. One of the men indicted for the robbery accompanied officers to the state, but the G-men refused to reveal his identity.

With more than 420,000 miners already idle and coal production almost at a standstill, a serious coal shortage threatened the country. It already has forced curtailment of subway service in New York, and led to shutdowns of many factories. Still wider shutdowns were threatened.

INDUSTRIES SUFFER FROM STRIKE, CONTINUE TO RUN

Circleville's major industries have felt the pinch of the coal strike, but they have been able to obtain sufficient supplies to continue operations.

The Container Corporation has sufficient coal to last until May 15. The Eshelman and Ralston-Purina mills have been able to obtain sufficient coal to continue operations.

Some small industrial firms in Columbus have been forced to shut down temporarily due to the shortage of coal. Others are operating on a day-to-day basis.

Winner Draws $47,350

The net value to the winner will be $47,350—the prize Jockey Jimmy Stout is expected to snatch from the rest for William Woodward, owner of Belair Stud and, of course, Johnstown, one of the all time standouts among the turf filberts. Many of them have been here a week or more, working themselves up for a burst of mass hysteria later today.

They've stood in the shadow of flags and bunting that dress virtually every building; sat in all the hotel lobbies, moved to and from the track and brought marked depletion to the available supply of liquid refreshments.

Finally, they've reached the almost unanimous conclusion that it will be a one-horse race from barrier to judge's stand.

In fact, everybody is so thoroughly sold on Johnstown that there seems to be no very good reason for running the race at all. The wear and tear on a crowd that will approach 100,000, and a new record, could be averted by simply sending the winner's bouquet down to Johnstown in his stable.

Several Have Chance

But what about Challedon, who will be hatted toward the payoffs by George Seabo in behalf of Owner W. L. Brann? and Technician, with Johnny Adams up in the colors of Woodford farms, or El Chico, piloted by Wall for William Zeigler, Jr.? Local citizens dismiss them as though they were not in the same race with the favorite. They've got a chance, of course, you are told. Johnstown may break a leg.

The foregoing, anyhow, are expected to make the race, with Challedon a bare possibility if the weather changes. He will be ridden by the flying Dutchman, Charlie Kurlinger who handled War Admiral in his major victories. Heather Broom, with Stephen up for John Hay Whitney, might crowd into the money, but few gave him a chance, despite everything that famed, almost immortal, Trainer Earl Sande may do.

FOUR GUARDED IN BRUTAL DEATH OF ARKANSAS GIRL

PINE BLUFF, Ark., May 6—Four persons were held under close guard today in connection with the brutal slaying of 19-year-old Irene Taylor, whose ravished body was recovered from a swamp yesterday.

The four, all Negroes, are a woman about 50, a girl 15, and two youths around 20. Sheriff Garland Brewster refused to reveal their names.

He said that two of the prisoners had confessed the killing, giving as their motive that "Irene had a pretty boy of candy." Sheriff Brewster said he learned the girl had been seized as she was walking near a cemetery and that the killers had later thrown her body in a nearby bayou after it had been weighted and tied with wire. It was found in fifteen feet of water.

Darbyville Community Meets To Discuss Campaign To Halt Obliteration

cluding 88 in the grades and 32 in the high school.

Filing of the two petitions followed the action of the State High School board. They have complicated the school's problem in that transfer of territory includes grade pupils and if granted will reduce the enrollment to a point that there is danger of the grade school being closed.

The two sections of territory involved in the petitions contain 35 to 40 grade and high school pupils. Dr. E. A. Secoy, Darbyville, mayor, contended that there seemed to be considerable misunderstanding concerning the petitions.

"The word was spread around that the whole school would be sent to Monroe," the doctor said. "I don't think the people want to stand for it. Why should the whole school be obliterated? The people have a perfect right to maintain the grade school even if we do lose the high school."

McDowell Speaks

George D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools, explained that the problem of the Muhlenberg high school was one that had been developing for many years. "You realize that it is impossible to maintain a satisfactory high school with an enrollment of only 32 pupils," he said. "There was no thought that the grade school be affected at all."

"If we want to hold our elementary school we better go to work and work hard," Mr. Renick said. Mr. McDowell was surprised that there was a misunderstanding in the territory that the grade school was affected.

Although the recommendation of the Ohio High School board was that Muhlenberg district be joined with Monroe, parents of high school pupils seemed divided on their opinions as to where their children should attend schools. Some in outlying sections of the Muhlenberg district desired that their children attend schools other than Monroe due to nearness to these schools. Districts surrounding Muhlenberg are Jackson, Monroe, Scioto and Darby.

The petitions for territory transfers were accepted by the county board and tabled for 30 days, the period required by law during which protests may be filed.
